SEC's Douglas Named to Supreme Court

TAKES PLACE OF BRANDEIS ON TRIBUNAL

Roosevelt Nominates Chairman of Securities Commission to Fill Vacancy.

NEW DEAL SUPPORTER

(Picture on Page 8)

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — William O. Douglas, 40-year-old chairman of the securities commission, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be an associate justice of the supreme court.

If the nomination is confirmed by the senate, Douglas will succeed the veteran Justice Louis D. Brandeis, who retired Feb. 13 after 23 years on the high tribunal.

Lives in Connecticut.

Although there had been a widespread demand for appointment of a westerner to fill the court vacancy, Douglas, a former Yale law professor, was appointed from Connecticut.

However, Douglas was born in Minnesota and received his early schooling in Washington state.

Douglas is known as a consistent New Deal supporter.

Recently, he denounced as a "phony" a proposal from the stock exchanges to change trading rules.

This was President Roosevelt's fourth appointment in less than two years to the nine-man court. There was no vacancy during his first term.

Another vacancy would permit him to name a majority on the bench. Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes will be 77 on April 11, Justice James G. McReynolds already is 77, and Justice Pierce Butler is 72.

Name Sent to Senate.

The other three judges President Roosevelt has named are Justices Hugo L. Black, Stanley Reed and Felix Frankfurter, in that order.

Douglas' name was immediately sent to the senate, where it was not expected there would be any dispute over his confirmation.

The senate sharply debated the confirmation of Justice Black and held hearings on the Frankfurter appointment. Justice Reed was appointed without argument.

Appointment of Douglas will not affect the close liberal-conservative alignment of the court, since Justice Brandeis was considered the foremost liberal ever to sit on the court

FLASHES From The Wires

Press-Time Bulletins In Tabloid Style On Latest News of World

—(AP-UP-INS)—

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— The state department today instructed American Minister Wilbur J. Carr to close the United States legation in Prague and to turn over the properties and records to the American consul general.

KAUNAS—(INS)—In an effort to "appease" the German residents of Memel, the Lithuanian government today issued a decree exempting all residents of the territory from compulsory military service.

PARIS — (INS) — Heavy German troop movements in the vicinity of Tilsit on the border of East Prussia and Lithuania were reported in Paris today. Unofficial observers saw the military activity as a threat to Memel, particularly in view of the presence of Lithuania's foreign minister in Berlin.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The civil aeronautics authority, reporting that aggressor nations had "startled us into action," asked congress today for a $7,500,000 appropriation to train civilian air pilots. Robert Hinckley, a member of the authority, said 20,000 pilots for use in a possible emergency would be a "formidable and salutary deterrent" to an aerial attack.

WPA Slash Order Hits City Relief

Mansfield's relief situation which has been described by city officials as "serious" suffered a new blow today with the announcement from Washington that 36,500 persons must be cut from Ohio WPA rolls during the first two weeks of April.

The announcement was made by WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington who telegraphed state WPA officials to cut relief rolls by 400,000 throughout the nation because of failure of congress as yet to vote additional WPA funds.

The initial cut is scheduled to be followed by a further reduction of 600,000 persons in May, and 200,000 in June. WPA rolls at present are approximately 3,105,000 persons. Harrington contends that the $725,000,000 already voted is sufficient only to maintain an average of 2,000,000 persons on the rolls during April, May and June.

Plan to Trim Request.

The order to "cut" came as the house appropriations sub-committee in Washington agreed in a secret conference over the week-end to cut President Roosevelt's request for $1,500,000 additional relief funds to $1,000,000, the United Press reported.

Dispatches said that the decision reached at the conference of five of the eight Democratic members of the committee was to be communicated to Speaker William B. Bankhead and house majority leaders today so that the president can be informed at his regular Monday legislative conference.

Relief officials here said today that they had not yet been informed of the reduction to be made in Richland county which now has approximately 1,100 persons on WPA rolls.

They predicted however, that any cut in personnel here would tend to increase the already "overtaxed" direct relief load.

It was pointed out that although the case load in Richland county is somewhat below that of last year, a WPA layoff in April would increase relief load which normally decreases during the next month and continues through the summer.

Mrs. Dorothy Arnold, county certifying agent for WPA announced today that 62 mothers who were laid off two months ago by a state order because it was believed they were eligible to participate in aid for dependent children had been rehired on the sewing project.

EVE OF SPRING

It Arrives Tuesday Morning; Mercury Moves Up.

Tomorrow, by the calendar, is the first day of spring, and the temperature today gave a slight indication that spring was near. That wasn't the case Saturday night or early Sunday, however, for the mercury skidded to a reading of just 7 above zero.

Today, however, the mercury climbed to 44 at noon, and after dropping slightly during the night, is scheduled to move upward tomorrow, though the skies may be cloudy.

Despite a high wind yesterday, the mercury reached a reading of 43 degrees.

Spring's arrival is scheduled for 7:29 a. m. tomorrow, but that doesn't mean you can let the furnace go out. There'll be plenty cold days yet.

SETTLE STRIKE

Washington Hotel Workers Agree To Go Back To Work.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The strike of union employes at 13 capital hotels has ended in a compromise.

Under an agreement announced last night by John R. Steelman, labor department conciliation chief, the hotels retained their right to promote, transfer or discharge employes but agreed to give preference to union members in filling vacancies.

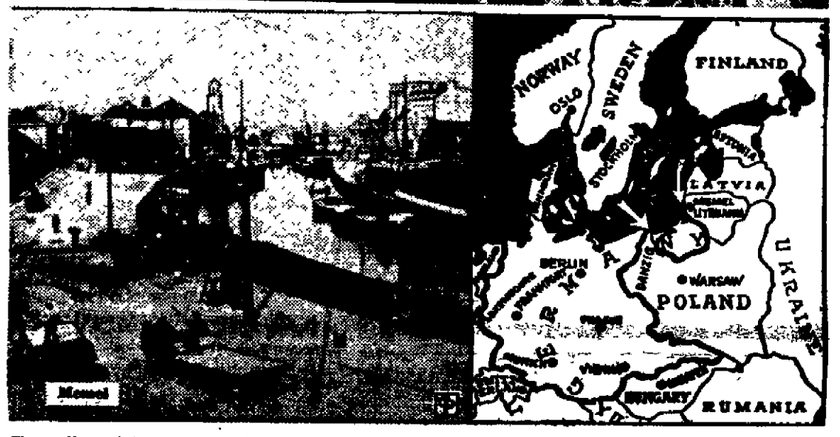
Memel, Danzig, Loom As Hitler's Next Goals



Chancellor Adolf Hitler's next move in his program of bloodless conquests for Germany is expected to be a march into the Polish Corridor and the annexation of Memel and the free city of Danzig. European observers today predicted the seizure of Memel was only a matter of days. Danzig, Memel and the territory comprising the Corridor were lost to Germany by the treaty of Versailles. Photos show, above, a view of Danzig with the quaint medieval houses in the background. The picture of Memel indicates its importance as a port. Map indicates what may be the next area to fall under the sway of the swastika if Hitler continues his expansion program.

STUDY SEWER SURVEY NEEDS

Marion Engineers Make Check as Mayor Calls Council to Act on Problem Tuesday.

Members of a Marion firm of sanitary consultants today were studying the city's needs on the proposed survey of the sanitary sewer system as Mayor Claude M. Hunter called a special meeting of council for Tuesday night to authorize the hiring of consulting engineers to conduct the survey.

The call for the meeting follows the State Department of Health's demand last week that the survey be conducted by a recognized firm of consulting engineers. Previously the state informed city officials that it would accept a report on the project as long as the work met with the approval of the board.

Mayor Hunter said that a new measure, repealing an ordinance passed at a special meeting last week authorizing the employment of an engineer would be presented to council. It will permit Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist to enter into a contract with a consulting firm to do the work.

Hunter said that a survey of the city's needs in the way of a report were being conducted by the Floyd G. Brown, sanitary engineers of Marion, today and that he expected to receive an estimate on the cost today that would serve as a basis for any additional funds which will be asked in the new ordinance.

2 YOUTHS SAVED

Rescued From Sloop After Being Adrift 50 Days.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The steamship Buenos Aires has rescued two youths who had been adrift for 50 days in the tiny sloop Sunray off the western coast of Central America, the navy department was advised today.

The Buenos Aires reported to the navy that it had taken Hector McDonald Morirson, 23, a Canadian, and Daniel M. Hunsacker, jr., 23, of Los Angeles, from the sloop.

'NO INCREASE'

Roosevelt Says Debt Limit to Stay at 45 Billions.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt today advised congress that the administration has no desire to increase the public debt limit from 45 billion to 50 billion dollars—but at the same time requested that the current limitation of 30 billion dollars on outstanding bonds be eliminated entirely.

In a special message, the president conveyed to congress a letter from Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau setting forth the treasury's position.

"You will note from this letter that the secretary of the treasury feels that there will be no necessity for increasing the present limitation of 45 billion dollars on the total public debt which may be outstanding at one time," the president wrote.

(Picture on Page 8)

A Civic Music membership which establishes a record in Mansfield and at the same time assures the city of an unusually fine program for the coming season was announced today by leaders of the Membership campaign which closed Saturday night.

The lists were closed at 10 p. m. Saturday with 1,050 memberships, an increase of almost 300 over last year. Of the total membership, 396 were new members which shows that only 96 old members failed to renew their affiliation with the association this year. Most of these were persons who will be leaving the city during the winter months next year.

This is the largest number of persons ever signed up for a season of attractions in Mansfield and indicates an increasing interest in the Civic Music plan of bringing outstanding artists to a city.

The talent committee announced today that because of the fine support given the plan this year, all three attractions for the 1939-40 season are in the top brackets.

The program of concerts will bring to Mansfield Gladys Swarthout, beautiful star of opera and motion pictures; the National

KING SOLOMON'S JEWELS FOUND

(By International News Service)

CAIRO, Egypt—Surrounded by stolen treasures of King Solomon, the mummified remains of Shishak, robber king of Egypt, were uncovered today by King Tarouk who took personal charge of a tomb discovered by Professor Pierre Montet of Strasbourgh university in the delta of the Nile.

Because Solomon's treasures had been placed with him, the mummy was at first thought to be that of King Psou-Sen-Nes, a father-in-law of Solomon, but the evidence that it was really that of Shishak was indisputable in the light of further discoveries.

The tomb was that of Psou-Sen-Nes but hieroglyphics covering the gold sarcophagus indicated that the mummy was undoubtedly that of Shishak.

The First Book of Kings in the Old Testament records:

"And it came to pass in the fifth year of King Rehoboam, that Shishak, king of Egypt, came up against Jerusalem.

"And he took away the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the treasures of the king's house; he even took away all; and he took away all the shields of gold which Solomon had made."

History records that Shishak attacked Jerusalem with a huge army and sacked Solomon's temple.

Discovery of the tomb was regarded as the most important find since the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen's was opened near Luxor 14 years ago.

DRIVER FREED IN 4TH COUNTY TRAFFIC DEATH

DOUBLES TOLL FOR 1938

Third Pedestrian Victim Hit by Car in Front of Home and Hurled 50 Feet.

Herbert Lawrence, 19, of Lexington, was exonerated today of blame for the death early Sunday of Arthur J. Sowers, 68, also of Lexington, who became Richland county's fourth traffic victim of the year.

Mr. Sowers' death, about 1 a. m. Sunday, three hours after he was struck by a car driven by Lawrence, boosted the county's toll to double last year's total for the same period. Three of the four victims this year, including Mr. Sowers, were killed while walking in the street.

Richland County's 1939 Traffic Toll

This date last year—2

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott, who questioned Lawrence this morning, said there was "not sufficient evidence to hold him on a manslaughter charge."

Fined on Other Charge.

Cited on a charge of driving without an operator's permit, young Lawrence pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning and was fined $10 and costs. State patrolmen found he had failed to obtain a 1939 driver's license when they questioned him concerning the accident. Lawrence produced licenses, however, for the two previous years.

Mr. Sowers, brother of G. V. Sowers, record clerk in the Mansfield sewage department, was hurled 50 feet by a car driven by Lawrence as he crossed route 42 in front of his home in Lexington at 10:10 p. m. Saturday. He died at the home of his sister, Mrs. M. D. Graham, with whom he had been visiting during the evening.

State Patrolmen C. W. Cale and C. F. Strayer who investigated the accident, said young Lawrence, a Wooster college student, apparently was driving downgrade at about 35 miles an hour when his car struck his fellow townsman.

RESUMES STUDY

Assembly Committee Digs in Ohio's Relief Problem.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—A joint relief committee will resume hearings today in its work of formulating a biennial relief program with three major reorganization bills due for consideration by house and senate after both branches of the general assembly reconvene.

The house was called for a regular Monday evening session with only routine bills on the calendar. The senate will meet tomorrow afternoon and was expected to pass the administration ripper bill replacing the parole board with a pardon and parole commission.

The house probably will take favorable action later in the week on senate approved bills to reorganize the conservation division and to create a taxation department under a commissioner and board of appeals.

The agreed program for civil service reorganization probably will take shape in the house committee on organization of state government Tuesday night.

British Call On Soviet, Poles To Resist Germany

Cabinet Plans To Unite Southeastern Europe Again Aggression; London Waits Chamberlain's Address For Hint As To New Foreign Policy.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—Reports circulated in parliamentary lobbies late today that Britain, France and Soviet Russia shortly might issue a joint declaration foreshadowing mutual defense measures to resist possible German aggression.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The British cabinet was reported by informed quarters today to have decided to communicate immediately with Soviet Russian, Polish and southeastern European governments on formation of a united front against aggression in Europe.

Labor and Liberal opposition leaders, meanwhile, were understood to have pledged support for the government's new policy of resistance to any further Nazi move towards European domination.

In addition to communicating with Moscow and Warsaw, the cabinet was said to have decided on approaches to Rumania, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Bulgaria in its attempt to weld "anti-aggressor" nations into a bloc.

The cabinet met in the second emergency session in two days for urgent consideration of Prime Minister Chamberlain's new program of blunt resistance to aggression.

A large crowd anxiously watched the front door at No. 10 Downing street as Chamberlain and his ministers discussed the policy he was expected to outline this afternoon in the house of commons.

All Britain awaited the address and that of Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax for a clue as to how they propose to stop Germany's eastward march.

Dominions Back Stand.

The cabinet considered the latest reports of its diplomatic and defense experts and the views of the dominion governments, whose London representatives had been summoned urgently by Dominions Secretary Sir Thomas Inskip.

It was believed that the Dominions had decided to back Chamberlain's government in any move to form a solid front against further aggression in Europe.

Officers at the Portland naval base warned their men to be ready for any emergency in the grave international situation.

Britain sounded out Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador, on the possibility of Russian co-operation with England, France, Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey to stop Adolf Hitler.

Informed sources said Lord Halifax and Maisky had gone over the situation "in all its aspects" and "it may be expected" that Britain and the Soviet Union would continue to discuss collaboration.

It was pointed out as significant that Maisky is the only ambassad-

BERLIN: Memel's Annexation By Nazis Matter of Days, Belief

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—Germany and Lithuania were reported today to have come to an understanding on Germany's possible annexation of Memel.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Juozas Urbsys, foreign affairs minister of Lithuania, and German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop conferred today on what government spokesmen said was primarily the fate of Memel.

Circumstantial evidence indicated that the reunion of Memel with greater Germany is only a question of days.

(Memel, a Baltic district 1,099 square miles in area, was detached from Germany by the Versailles treaty and later placed under Lithuanian sovereignty with a measure of autonomy.)

With Chancellor Hitler back in his world-watched chancellery and the press hinting at a possible cancellation of the 1935 British-German naval treaty in reply to Britain's stiff protest over Nazi absorption of Czecho-Slovakia last week, this train of facts showed how the wind was blowing:

1. German newspaper editors told their foreign colleagues privately that the absorption of Memel was practically assured.
2. Various travelers reaching Berlin from the northeast of Europe reported troop movements.
3. A meeting of the Memel landtag or diet is scheduled for March 25, and the date is regarded in political circles as pivotal in Memel's future history.
4. The discussion between Von

BUCHAREST: Rumania Gives In, Signs Pact With Germany

BULLETIN

LONDON—(U.P.)—Great Britain is sending a commercial mission to Rumania, the government announced today in the house of commons as debate opened on methods of opposing Nazi expansion eastward in central Europe.

(By International News Service)

BUCHAREST—Oil, literally, was spread on Europe's troubled waters today when Rumania agreed to sign a trade pact with Germany giving the reich development concessions in this country's petroleum fields.

Official circles denied that any general mobilization order had been issued in the face of the reported German and Hungarian threats, yet it was learned that a large number of men have been called to join their regiments.

One hundred thousand soldiers, it was estimated, have been sent to the Ruthenian border.

(The London Daily Express in a Bucharest dispatch said 200,000 Rumanian troops were stationed in blockhouses and dugouts along the Hungarian frontier, and heavy artillery, anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns were emplaced along the Carpatho-Ukrainian border.)

Rumania's confidence was aided by the statement of Prime Minister Chamberlain in England last Friday that Britain is "not disinterested in what goes on in southeastern Europe."

The new commercial agreement is to be signed tomorrow. Rumanian sources denied the information in London and Paris that strong German pressure was brought to bear to produce the agreement. Nothing in the nature of an ultimatum was delivered by Dr. Helmuth Wolthat, special German trade emissary who negotiated the treaty, it was asserted.

Further extension of mutual exports is provided for in the treaty, according to preliminary information. Germany will be allowed to develop the deep-lying oil deposits of Rumania, which have been untouched so far because of the lack of capital and machinery. Production of soy beans in Rumania for export to Germany will be encouraged.

Roosevelt Halts Tax Revamp Plan for Recovery Boom

INCREASES IN OTHER LEVIES FROWNED UPON

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt has turned a red stop light on business appeasement plans which would take a $250,000,000 chance that reduced tax rates would increase actual treasury revenue.

A program of tax revision on that pattern was understood to be the first choice of both the National Association of Manufacutrers and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Business spokesmen argue that removal of "business deterrents" from the tax structure would encourage private initiative, increase business turnover and give the treasury more income at the new, lower rates than is obtained under existing schedules.

Mr. Roosevelt's position, stated emphatically at his press conferences is that any tax revision to eliminate "business deterrents" must increase other levies to offset potential losses. The president insistently has told reporters that Chairman Pat Harrison, D., Miss., of the senate finance committee has agreed that tax revision must include increased levies in some categories to offset reductions in others.

Europe Takes Attention.

Tax developments were lost in the week-end excitement over German and Hungarian seizures of Czechoslovakian territory. But a recapitulation of authoritative tax statements leads observers to these conclusions:

1. Mr. Roosevelt has forbidden cabinet officers interested in tax revision to commit the administration in any way either that change is necessary or as to method of altering rates.

2. Business pleaders for tax reform rapidly are reconciling themselves to the fact that Mr. Roosevelt will not take a chance on sacrificing revenues-in-the-hand for revenue promised from better business if some rates were abandoned or lowered.

3. Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes has had indirect warning through the newspapers, if not directly from Mr. Roosevelt, that the White House will not countenance a Hanes-Harrison tax reduction partnership.

4. Tax reduction predicated on government economy is a practical impossibility.

The $250,000,000 figure is judged by experts to represent a liberal estimate of what the treasury might lose if the corporation surplus and capital gains taxes were repealed and some other tax burdens eased by administration order. Hanes has told business spokesmen that there is no likelihood of obtaining White House agreement to any such plan without compensating increases in other corporation rates.

MRS. ANDERSON TAKEN BY DEATH

Former Mansfield Resident Dies in Cleveland Sunday.

Mrs. Margaret Miller Anderson, formerly of Mansfield, died at her home in Cleveland Sunday. Mrs. Anderson was employed in the cafeteria at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company until 10 years ago, when she moved to Cleveland.

A daughter, Mrs. Flossie Morrison of Cleveland, and a son, Gaylord C. Hawks of near Mansfield, survive. Mrs. Anderson was a member of the Mansfield Women's Benefit association.

Funeral services will be held at the St. John's Lutheran church in Perysville at 2 p. m. Wednesday. Burial will be in Perysville.

BARN DESTROYED

Firemen Save Other Buildings in Sunday Blaze.

Fire of an undetermined origin, early yesterday destroyed a barn on the farm of John Bartoseski, 490 Van Buren avenue, with an estimated loss of $1,000 as two fire companies battled to save adjoining buildings.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger reported that the blaze, discovered at 3 a. m. by the family, was beyond control when firemen arrived. He said that companies Nos. 2 and 4 alternated with booster equipment to save adjoining buildings. The property is located beyond the city limits and hose lines could not be laid to the fire.

Two automobiles and a number of chickens were removed from the buildings in time to prevent their being burned.

DRUG COMPANY ACTS IN STRIKE

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—The Marshall Drug company, one of the three large drug chains involved in a strike called by four American Federation of Labor unions, today announced that it was permanently abandoning operation of drug and prescription departments in most of its 45 retail outlets.

Stores in which the drug business will be discontinued will be operated by a subsidiary company to be incorporated today in Columbus. The subsidiary will be known as Marshall Stores Inc.

Thomas B. Bolton, general counsel for the company, said that many of the 300 pharmacists employed by the firm before start of the strike last Wednesday probably will be dismissed.

Bolton's announcement followed a week-end marched by stench bombings of the homes of four managers of stores involved in the strike. Union leaders denied any connection with the attacks.

Firms involved in the dispute in addition to Marshall Drug company are Weinberger Drug Stores Inc. and the Standard Drug company. Union leaders claimed that at least six stores which had reopened were closed over the week-end.

Peter Formica, international organizer for the retail clerks protective association, announced that a taxpayers suit to compel the state board of pharmacy to enforce laws requiring pharmacists be on duty in stores that have reopened will be filed within a day or two if the board takes no action.

DIES AT 88 IN FREDERICKTOWN

Mrs. Ella Potter Stricken Today In Home of Her Daughter.

FREDERICKTOWN—Mrs. Ella Potter, 88, died early this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Florence Clark, West Sandusky street, after a month's illness.

Two daughters survive her. They are Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Carl Whitney, Indianapolis. Other survivors are a sister, Mrs. Anna Cummings Fredericktown; a brother, Fred Maine of Chesterville, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Clark home at 2 p. m. Wednesday, with Rev. R. A. Woodworth officiating. Interment will be in Forest cemetery.

YOUTH IN AUTO KILLS ROBBER WITH PENKNIFE, SLASHES PAL

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND—The holdup career of two youthful gunmen was ended today by death and arrest after the pair came off second best in a wild battle with three young men and a girl in a moving automobile.

Leonard J. Kocian, 19, was dead, fatally wounded when slashed in the thigh by Cletus Muenker, 21, mild-mannered orchestra leader. Edward E. Skiba, 23, was held in prison ward of city hospital with severe cuts on the head, neck and hands.

The two robbers started an evening of holdups when they took $7.25 and a taxicab from Driver Louis Wasserman, police said, and followed up shortly by lining up six men in the washroom of an east side cafe, obtaining approximately $15.

As the gunmen fled the cafe, Muenker, Robert Finley, 29, Miss Thelma Geckler, 26, and Remington Arnold, 26, were sitting in Muenker's automobile in front of the place. The youths jumped on the running board and asked for a ride.

Standing on the running board Kocian pulled a revolver and urged Muenker to drive faster. He also took $3 from Arnold and then demanded money from Finley, who grabbed his gun. Kocian pulled the trigger twice but the first time the gun missed fire and the second time the hammer fell on Finley's hand.

Muenker stopped the car and entered the battle armed with a small penknife he uses to shave saxaphone reeds. Slashed by the knife, the robbers quit the struggle and Muenker and his companions climbed into the car and drove to the nearest police station.

Police found Kocian dead from loss of blood at the curb where the battle ended. Skiba was picked up in a poolroom in suburban Garfield Heights.

Muenker suffered head lacerations when Kocian forced his head through the closed automobile window. He was released after being held overnight for observation at Lakeside hospital.

DEADLOCK GRIPS CONFEREES AT LABOR PARLEY

Union Observers Forecasting Collapse of Negotiations Under Present Set-Up.

BACKGROUND

On Feb. 25, President Roosevelt sent letters to the heads of the CIO and A. F. of L. asking them to appoint committees to negotiate a peace with honor to end labor's civil war. The committees were appointed. On March 7, he made a personal appeal to them in the White House for peace. Today, however, peace appears more remote than ever.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Two new attacks by the A. F. of L. on the CIO today plunged the presidentially-mandated labor peace conference into high confusion.

They also left a strange spectacle for President Roosevelt to study. The A. F. of L. and CIO were fighting each other harder than ever and still talking peace across a conference table.

Many labor observers and some quarters in the ranks of labor itself, now believed that only a change in labor leadership or further intervention by the president or his administration can save the conferences from collapse.

Pension For Green?

The CIO, it was learned, would espouse a change in labor leadership. John L. Lewis, head of the CIO, in offering one peace proposal now rejected, suggested retirement on a pension for life of William Green, A. F. of L. president. Previously he offered to resign as CIO chieftain, if, and only, Green would resign as head of the federation too. He made this in answer to some criticism that he and Green were blocking peace proposals.

Green started a new move against the CIO yesterday when he announced that the federation would establish a western headquarters in San Francisco in the heart of a CIO stronghold. Myer L. Lewis, president of the national council of grain processors and crack labor organizer for the federation for 10 years, was assigned to the post.

CIO spokesmen charged the move was a direct attempt to undermine the CIO on the coast and weaken the strength of Harry Bridges, the CIO's west coast maritime union leader who is now the center of deportation proceedings. It was Bridges' case that formed the basis of the efforts of Rep. Thomas (R) of New Jersey to institute impeachment proceedings against Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Federation officials said, however, that the west coast drive was "purely an administrative detail."

Meanwhile, three meetings were to be held in Washington this week which may have a vital effect on the A. F. of L.-CIO peace talks. They were:

Tuesday—The senate labor committee will consider setting a date for hearings on proposed labor act amendments, which the A. F. of L. advocates and the CIO opposes.

Wednesday—The 17-man A. F. of L. executive council will determine how far the A. F. of L. negotiators can go in settling jurisdictional disputes with the CIO.

Friday—The CIO and A F. of L. committees resume their peace talks.

INVALID DIES AT WILLARD HOME

Mrs. A. W. Owen Observed 59th Anniversary Last Month.

WILLARD—Mrs. A. W. Owen, 81, died at her home Sunday. She had been an invalid for several years.

Born in Richmond township west of here, she spent her entire life in this community. Last month Mr. and Mrs. Owen celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary.

She is survived by her husband, a sister, Mrs. Henry Rex, Willard, and two brothers, George Franklin of Richmond township and Clarence of Fostoria. She was a member of the United Brethren church and the Women's Missionary society.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Wednesday at the Fink funeral home with Rev. Paul W. Sharp officiating. Burial will be in Greenlawn cemetery.

209 CASES UP

Parole Board Meets At Ohio Reformatory Today.

The cases of 209 inmates at the Ohio State reformatory were to be reviewed by the Ohio Board of Parole which convened at the institution today.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said that all the cases were at the institution proper and that none of the cases at the honor camp would be reviewed until next month. All members of the board are here for the sessions. They are H. W. Jewell, Delaware, chairman; Frank T. Sotak, Cleveland; Bishop Reverdy C. Ransom, Wilberforce, and Mrs. Myrna Smith, Kent.

Illness Fatal

HARRY J. LAPHAM

FIRST BAILIFF OF CITY COURT DIES

Harry Lapham, Resident Here 40 Years, Stricken at 75 at Buckeye Lake.

Harry J. Lapham, 75, first municipal court bailiff, died at his home at Buckeye Lake Sunday evening after an illness of seven weeks.

Mr. Lapham, who left Mansfield three years ago to make his home at Buckeye Lake, was appointed bailiff by Judge R. E. Hutchison in 1928 and served in this capacity for eight years.

A resident of this city 40 years, Mr. Lapham, prior to his appointment as bailiff, operated a clothing store in the Bower building at West Fourth and Main streets for 23 years. He first was in partnership with G. C. Albrecht and later with his son, G. B. Lapham of Chicago, who survives.

Mr. Lapham was active in various civic and fraternal circles. He was a charter member of the Kiwanis club, the First Methodist church of which he served as a member of the board of trustees for many years, Masonic lodge, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, Modern Woodmen of America and John Alden club.

In addition to the son, the survivors include his wife, Edith; a daughter, Mrs. Hazel Slick of Mansfield; a sister, Mrs. Ed. Caldwell of Maumee; a brother, Hayes of Toledo, and two grandsons.

The body was removed to the Painter funeral home in Columbus where services will be held at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. Services will be conducted at the Presbyterian church in Lexington at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday with Rev. E. C. Corwin of the First Methodist church, Mansfield, officiating. Burial will be in the Lexington cemetery.

EXPERTS STUDY TWISTED METAL, PLANE MOTORS

33-Passenger Craft Plunges 10,000 Feet; Structural Defects Hunted.

(By Associated Press)

ALDER, Wash — Aviation experts came to this mountain village today to seek an explanation for the crash of the new four-motored Boeing stratoliner which carried its ten occupants to death in a spectacular 10,000-foot plunge Saturday.

Victims of the crash included A. G. Von Baumhauer, aeronautcis engineer for The Netherlands government; Peter Guilonard, assistant manager of the Royal Dutch Air Lines; and several prominent American airmen.

Presence of Van Baumhauer and Guilonard in Seattle had not been generally known. Von Baumhauer was a member of the Dutch air mission in the United States, Guilonard came on private business.

Valued At Half Million.

Federal and Boeing officials studied the twisted wreckage of the $500,000 ship to determine whether a structural fault was responsible. Thomas Hardin, of Washington, D. C., vice chairman of the air safety board of the civil aeronautics authority, directthe the federal investigation, while R. J. Minshall, vice president and assistant general manager of the Boeing Aircraft company, headed the builder's examiners.

Neither would hazard an opinion as to the cause of the accident, which stripped the Boeing company of some of its key men including test pilots Earl Ferguson, 31, Julius Barr, and William Doyle, all of Seattle.

Other victims were Harlan Hull, 32, Kansas City, Mo., chief test pilot for the Transcontinental and Western Airlines; John Kylstra, Seattle, Boeing chief engineer; Ralph L. Cram, 33, Seattle, Boeing aerodynamics expert; Benjamin J. Pearson, 32, Seattle, assistant Boeing salesmanager; and Harry T. West, jr., 36, Seattle, Boeing foreman.

The stratoliner, designed to carry 33 passengers and a crew of five on high altitude flights, had been undergoing a series of tests.

KIN OF MANSFIELDER

Ralph L. Cram, who was killed on the Boeing stratoliner crash, was a first cousin of Don D. Cram, physical education director of the Mansfield Y. M. C. A. However, the two had never seen each other. Ralph Cram had been with the Boeing company for about six or eight years. He was the son of Ralph W. Cram, editor and publisher of the Davenport, Ia., Democrat.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Keeping the movies clean is more than a matter of Breen.

And even stars who are not "washed up" must be sent to the cleaners—to the tune of about $10,000 a year.

Joe Breen and company are here to see that one kind of dirt—yes, my darling daughter, that kind!—stays off the screen. But other men, equally vigilant, are on hand to keep off just plain dirt.

The entire industry's annual bill for cleaning must be staggering. The 10,000 smackers represents one studio's—Universal's. One of the men who collects for out-outing damned spots from studio wardrobes is Ross Bower. For 12 years he's been standing by, ready at any time for emergency and routine cleaning jobs.

The spots which he must "out" for the studio range from chocolate ice cream soda (accidentally) to artificial blood and mud (on purpose).

It was during the making of "All Quiet on the Western Front." Every evening from 100 to 250 filthy, mud-encrusted uniforms worn by soldiers in trench scenes had to be restored to cleanliness.

In "Youth Takes a Fling" Andrea Leeds wore a lace bridal gown, original cost $1,000. In the picture she had to be caught in a rainstorm and wade knee-deep in mud while wearing the dress. Bower would wait daily outside her dressing room. As soon as a "take" was done, he'd get the dress, take it to his place and bring it back before nightfall, by which time the "stand-in" dress or duplicate, similarly soiled, would be ready for his attentions.

Make-up (especially around the player's neck) sends many a dress to the cleaning man. Sometimes he cleans it while an assistant director, or wardrobe attendant, waits with eye on the clock, ready to dash back to the set. But artificial blood (rosewater and glycerine and dye) is a finer problem, requiring greater skill. Sometimes the cleaner works on "blood" all night, special care being necessary so as not to mar the fabric. In aviation pictures chocolate syrup is used to "double" for motor oil. It's easily cleaned from fabrics, but not so easily from leather jackets—which, sadly, are most frequently bespattered with it. One of Bower's proudest "jobs" was Margaret Sullavan's wedding gown for "The Good Fairy." It was made of filmy veiling embroidered in transparent sequins.

"Cleaned it 25 times during the picture," he says, "and after that it was displayed in the window of a Hollywood shop—showed no sign of wear and tear and cleaning."

Once recently Ross was routed from a movie show—he goes to movies too—on a hurry call. He got out his padded truck with its padded hangers and dashed to Bing Crosby's "East Side of Heaven" set—ready for anything.

A short time later he was driving back to his plant. Inside the padded van, safe from all harm, was one soiled Bingish scarf.

"But I didn't mind," he says. "It's part of my studio work."

MANSFIELDERS WILL ATTEND MUSIC MEET

President of Local Organization, Others Plan to Be Present in Columbus for Business Sessions of 21st Annual Convention.

MANSFIELD will be represented at the 21st annual convention of the Ohio Music Study clubs which will be held in Columbus beginning tomorrow. Mrs. K. E. Buhr, president of the Mansfield Music Study club, and Mrs. George W. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. William Early, Robert Early and Mrs. David Ireland are all planning to attend the business sessions tomorrow at the Deshler-Wallick hotel.

Several other Mansfield women are planning to attend some of the sessions of the three-day convention, but their final arrangements have not been completed.

The program includes such events as a tea at the governor's mansion, and addresses by well-known names in the musical world. The governor of Ohio, John W. Bricker, will be the guest of honor at a banquet. The Capital university men's glee club will also present a program, and a variety of business meetings will offer helpful programs for all interested in musical affairs.

Serve Luncheon To Association

There were 11 members present for a luncheon meeting of the Women's auxiliary to the Railway Mail association Saturday afternoon at the Schwarz tavern on the Lexington avenue road. Mrs. R. E. Culler, Mrs. J. C. Robinson, Mrs. L. S. Wilson, and Mrs. Carl Miller were the hostesses.

During the afternoon Mrs. V. Q. Stauffer of Forest gave a paper on the life of Will Rogers. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in playing contests, bridge and Chinese checkers, with prizes going to Mrs. O. B. Grafmiller, and Mrs. Bert Ogle and Mrs. F. C. McNeal, both of Crestline.

The place for the meeting of April 15 has not yet been announced, but the hostesses that day will be Mrs. V. T. Mabee, Mrs. P. F. Smith, Mrs. B. O. Brenner, and Mrs. Grafmiller.

Beta Kappa Tau Holds Rush Tea In Club Rooms

All the members and pledges of Beta Kappa Tau were present yesterday afternoon in the club rooms at the Roth building for tea which was given in honor of the group's rushees. The sorority colors of blue and gold were used in the decorative scheme, and lighted blue tapers in gold holders decorated the room and the tea table.

Gold and blue fiesta ware further carried out the color note. Miss Ethel Heuss poured. The final entertainment for the sorority pledges will be held March 28 at the home of Miss Maxine Rimmer, Lexington avenue.

Tell Engagement At Dinner Party

Announcement of the engagement of Richard C. Olin to Miss Jean Gifford of Cleveland was made Saturday evening when Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Olin entertained at their home on Brinkerhoff avenue in honor of the couple. Following the dinner, Miss Helen Schmutzler and Donald E. Frampton honored the couple with an informal party at the Schmutzler home on Lexington avenue, and from there the guests proceeded to the Chi Sigma dance at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Miss Gifford is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. B. S. Gifford, who are now stationed as missionaries in Tabriz, Iran. Miss Gifford attends nurses training school in Cleveland, and Mr. Olin is a senior at Kenyon college in Gambier. No date has been set for the wedding as yet.

Luncheon Fetes Mrs. Moxley At Sister-In-Law's

Miss Lucille Moxley, 362 West Third street, entertained in honor of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Dana Moxley, Saturday at a 1 o'clock luncheon served to 15 friends. The long table was decorated with a yellow and white cake and lighted yellow tapers. Yellow and white flowers were used throughout the house.

There were two tables of bridge, and one of Chinese checkers in play with the Misses Marjorie Garrett and Marcille Stoner receiving bridge awards and the bride's sister, Miss June Mertz, being awarded the Chinese checkers prize.

Mrs. Moxley, who was Miss Eleanor Mertz, before her marriage of March 4 was presented with a cocktail table by the guests, and her sister-in-law gave her a wedding gift of a matching chair and ottoman. Mrs. R. F. Mertz, the bride's mother, will entertain with another shower honoring Mrs. Moxley.

Entertain 23 Members Of Club With Party

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Berg, South Foster street, were hosts to 23 members of the Schnitzelbank club Saturday evening when Mr. Berg's birthday was celebrated. The group played bunco, cards and other games, and prizes were awarded.

Winners included Mr. and Mrs. Homer Seevers, Mrs. Ira Zimmerman, George Arnold, Mrs. Harry Shover and Floyd Maglott. Luncheon was served at the close of the evening and it was announced that Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Leonard, South Foster street, would entertain April 29.

Birthday Club Served Dinner At Campbell's

St. Patrick appointments decorated the table at which a four course dinner was served to members of the Birthday club Saturday night when Mr. and Mrs. Frank Campbell entertained at 6 o'clock. The club members played hearts during the evening.

Prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Campbell and A. J. McHugh. The next meeting, for which the date has not yet been set, will be at the Andrews home on Wood street.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

You'll find Pinkham's Compound WELL WORTH TRYING!

Fichter-Bender Nuptials Event of Saturday Afternoon

IN A quiet ceremony, before their immediate families and close friends, Miss Martha Fichter became the bride of George H. Bender Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Detroit Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Lakewood. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fichter, 65 Heineman boulevard, and Mr. Bender is the son of Mrs. Henry Bender of Cleveland.

Rev. Melvin C. Hunt, former pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal church here, performed the single ring service. The bride was attired in a street length redingote frock for her wedding. The dress was fashioned from ice blue crepe and trimmed with a corded design. She wore black accessories and a shoulder corsage of orchids.

Mrs. R. B. MacFarland of Cleveland, Mr. Bender's sister, was the bride's only attendant, and she wore a teal blue frock with roseberry accessories. Her corsage was of gardenias. R. M MacFarland, also of Cleveland, served as his brother-in-law's best man.

Mrs. Fichter chose a street length gown of wine crepe for her daughter's wedding, and with it she wore black accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Bender was attired in a dress of Copenhagen blue with navy accessories and a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Immediately following the ceremony, the wedding party motored to the Shaker Tavern in Shaker Heights for dinner. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Bender left on a motor trip. For traveling, Mrs. Bender wore a biege dressmaker suit with japonica accessories. The couple will return to Mansfield early next week, and for the present will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Fichter on Heineman boulevard.

Mrs. Bender was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and attended the University of Alabama, where she was affiliated with Phi Mu, national social sorority. She is now employed in the office at the Ohio Brass company and is a member of Delta chapter, Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority. Mr. Bender is a graduate of a Cleveland high school and Ohio university. While at the university, he was a member of Phi Delta Theta, national social fraternity. He is now affiliated with the Beechnut Packing company.

Federation Members Invited To Go On Cherry Blossom Tour

THE travel committee of the Massillon Woman's Club has invited members of the Mansfield Federation of Women to join the Massillon organization on a cherry blossom pilgrimage this year, it was announced today by Mrs. John W. Graham, secretary of the Federation.

For the cherry blossom pilgrimage the clubs will go by bus with Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Bixler, New Philadelphia, in charge. The trip will be taken from April 12 to 17. The tour includes visits to all important and major points of interest in Washington, as well as Mt. Vernon and Alexandria, Va. Arrangements have been made to post information at the Club house so that members may plan this trip if they desire to make it.

Reservations for the tour, which will be limited to a number easily accommodated, are being made by Mrs. R. B. Crawford of the Massillon club. Further details will be supplied by Mrs. Graham, or Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, Federation president.

Informally Speaking...

Monday, March 20.

Lucy, dear:

The weather wasn't nice—but the week-end was . . . and the Chi Sigma St. Patrick dance was indeed a success. . . . I do wish you could have been here for it, Lucy, as a number of former Mansfielders were back, and I know you would have enjoyed seeing them again.

DOROTHY (Baker) and Traver Watson were here from their home in Akron for the week-end . . . and Winnie (Seneff) and Walter Graham were here from River Forest, Ill.—their first visit since their marriage last month. . . . And then there was a Mexican visitor here, too—Conrado deLa Garza came up from Monterey, Mexico, and he was here with Thomas Schaffer of Dover and Joseph Brown of Ashland. . . . They were renewing their acquaintances with Walter Jordan—as these latter three met deLa Garza during a southern vacation last winter—and I do believe deLa Garza was the only one who appreciated our week-end snow!

There was an array of colorful gowns at the dance, too—Bea Kochenderfer looked especially attractive in a shirtwaist formal with a chartreuse chiffon blouse and gay romanstriped crepe skirt. . . . Naomi Stutz set off her blond hair and blue eyes with a chiffon gown cut along Grecian lines and it shaded from a soft blue to lavendar. . . . Flowing white chiffon with a coral taffeta girdle formed Wileen Triesch's pretty gown. . . . And Helen Schmutzler's full-skirted chiffon was topped with a short jacket which was quilted in tiny squares—it was of a rose-pink shade between cyclamen and coral.

A GROUP of Mansfielders and former Mansfielders got together down in Florida the other day for a picnic near Jupiter, a few miles north of West Palm Beach. . . Old friendships were revived when Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Slough (no doubt you recall that Mr. Slough was at one time with the old Mansfield News here and that the Sloughs now reside in Erie, Pa) met some of the southern vacationers from Mansfield. . . . Among those who attended the picnic were Miss Lilly Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. William Dice, Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Keith, Mr. and Mrs. George DeYarmon, Mrs. Louise Light and Mr. and Mrs. William Fendrick.

AND speaking of vacationers—just heard from J. E. Willis . . . and his letter was enough to make the best of us envious. He and his sister, Mattie, have been down in Honolulu, Hawaii, for quite some time now—but evidently not nearly long enough, judging from Mr. Willis' description of the place—flowering trees and bushes . . . green lawns . . . temperatures never below 70 degrees . . . the blue ocean . . . mountains . . . and so it's little wonder that they're reluctant to leave this Friday—when they're sailing aboard the S. S. President Cleveland for San Francisco, where they'll stop off at the Golden Gate exposition . . . and before returning to Mansfield (sometime in May) plan to visit with Mr. Willis' daughter, Kathleen Roberts, and her husband at their ranch home in the San Jouquin Valley—which is between San Francisco and Los Angeles. . . . Now doesn't that sound like an enviable trip, Lucy—and certainly one to be long remembered!

Just had a letter from Ruth Dunham, too—saying that she's now learning to live the life of a mummy! Ruth, you know, has been in Lakeside hospital in Cleveland for the past month as a result of injuries sustained in a fall some time ago. . . . Her aspirations to the life of a mummy come as the result of a body cast. . . . I know she would appreciate a card or a visit from you, Lucy, and her present address is 28505 Osborn road, Bay Village. . . . As soon as she has regained some of her strength, Ruth will return to Mansfield and her job of teaching Latin out at Senior high.

WHILE Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Benedict have just returned from a two-months' trailer trip through the south and southwest, a number of other Mansfielders are just starting out on belated sojourns. . . . Dr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Schiller left Saturday for a vacation trip to Panama and Central America. . . . M. Dale Ward and his sister, Edna, have gone down to New Orleans, La.

* * * * *

Write soon, Lucy . . . and since tomorrow is officially the first day of spring, I hope that by the time I write you next week the birds will be singing, the flowers blooming—and spring here to stay at last.

Lovingly,

Marianne

Does Modern Education Fit for Job?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

What's wrong with our school system? Isn't it reasonable to suppose that after a boy or girl graduates from high school, he or she will be able to get a job, and in the ordinary course of events marry and rear a family of promising citizens?

And yet we find high school graduates jobless, dispirited, rebellious. They're also to be found on relief.

Might it not be well to teach students something practical, as taught in that most splendid project of this administration, the CCC, where a good many of them have written to me that for the first time in their lives they have been taught something practical—forestry, for instance.

This morning's mail brings the following letter from a boy, which sums up the point, I am trying to make, in a nutshell:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"Sally and I were in the grade school together, went through high school, and were both on the honor lists. We became engaged during commencement week and expected to marry the following September. That was three years ago, and neither of us has been able to get steady employment since then.

"Sally is very modern and wants to work after we are maarreid. But she's never been able to get a permanent or worthwhile job. She's worked in the five-and-ten; she had a frightful job called 'Mother's Helper' where she was expected to do practically everything—cook, wash, iron and take care of the children. After she contracted a cough and lost ten pounds, I made her stop.

"In the public schools I seem to have got a smattering of everything, but not enough to earn a living and support a wife. The trouble seems to be that energies are spread over too much territory, and we learn nothing thoroughly. I feel we've had a raw deal, educationally.

"AVERAGE BOY."

On the same day that this boy's letter came to this column, I saw by the morning paper, in a dispatch from Cleveland, that a group of rural high school graduates told school administrators what they think is wrong with education in small communities. And they concluded that the curriculum fails to fit them for life.

Thirty-five boys and girls from Amherst, Ohio, came to talk to the three thousand delegates to the annual meeting of the American Association of School Administrators. They agreed that their school work is: "too unrelated to the world in which we live."

One boy, now working on a farm, regarded his high school education as nothing more than a hit-or-miss collection of studies. He could do a better job if he'd been taught something about agriculture in high school.

Another young man, Leonard C. Wilson, who graduated five years ago, and is now a WPA recreational leader, said he blamed his education for his inability to find more desirable work.

"My French is forgotten, my history was useless, my mathematics not good enough to do a thorough job at shop math. I've often wondered whether the trouble is with myself or my education."

So many letters along these lines have come to this column from girls and boys who are engaged to be married, but hesitate because they have no assurance they will be able to earn a livelihood. Here's hoping that educational experts will take under consideration this question of practical education versus the smattering of culture to which these high school boys and girls attribute their inability to get jobs.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"It's like this, Noel—" I began.

I saw him square his shoulders with an involuntary little movement as if he were preparing to repel a blow.

"I don't want to seem inhospitable, Noel," I said, smiling in friendly fashion at his troubled face, "but I feel that it would be better if you left the farm house—for a time, at least—and returned with your father today to his hotel."

His face was suddenly illumined with joyous relief.

"Do you mean," he faltered, "that there's nothing more than that the matter?"

"That's all," I answered, "but I'm afraid your father won't consider it so trivial a matter."

"Yes, he will be difficult," he admitted. "But—what can he do if you insist upon my leaving, as I sincerely hope you do? You know this was never my plan, don't you, this coming to stay here while the farm house is guarded against attack?"

"Yes, I know, Noel," I said as he stopped, evidently stymied by his long and involved sentence. "And it won't be so difficult. After all, your father will not insist upon your staying when he is told that we do not think it advisable for you to be here."

"No, he won't," Noel admitted, "but have you thought that he may resent very strongly such a decision on your part, and may let his resentment take some concrete—and unpleasant—form?"

"But it won't be my decision, Noel," I said. "I shall be completely out of it."

"Whose, then?" Noel asked, completely bewildered.

"My mother-in-law's," I answered, and went on to tell him of Mother Graham's ultimatum that he leave the far house within a few hours.

"I suppose she heard us yesterday afternoon and in the kitchen last night," he said. "I'd like to explain that to you, but I don't want to be caddish, and yet, on the other hand, I certainly don't want Mary to get the impression—"

His voice trailed off helplessly, and his eyes were so bewildered that the impulse to salve his hurt triumphed over my discretion.

"Do you think you need to explain anything to me, Noel?" I asked. "I am thoroughly familiar with the technique of a certain type of fascinating girl. If such a one has an opportunity to secure a man's attention when there is no one around to compete with her, that man has no possible way of escape except flight. That way is open to you, without your having to choose it. And—you may rest assured that Mary will never know of this episode until you choose to tell her yourself, and then I am sure she will understand."

"I'm not so sure," he said slowly, then flushed again.

"Not so sure of what?" I asked quickly, then went on:

"Not so sure that Mary will never know until you choose to tell her, or that she will understand?"

"I know she will understand," Mary's young husband said proudly, but," his voice dropping despondently again, "I'm not so sure about the other."

THEATERS

THIS AND THAT: With Bette Davis winning the Academy award this year, critics and reviewers who have seen her new picture, "Dark Victory," are ready, almost to a man, to bet that she will take next year's award with her performance in this new film. Then there is her "Juarez," still in the making. . . . Another film that is pretty certain to be a box office hit is "Love Affair" with Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer. . . . Ginger Rogers goes back to straight dramatic roles in "Little Mother," with David Niven in support. . . .

Stiff Competition.

Whether in the rags of a waif or in the dream ballet costume, Shirley Temple demonstrates that she is still a real actress as well as a beauty in "The Little Princess," and to her other many accomplishments she now adds ballet dancing. But little Miss Temple finds her greatest competition to date in her own film, for Sybil Jason all but steals the picture right from under the star's cunning nose. You can bet that the Jason youngster will never appear in another Temple picture, but you can look to see this talented and appealing child in her own films before long. The film is at the Madison.

Small Fry.

A youngster, a small one, also takes more than its share of honors in the Carole Lombard-James Stewart picture, "Made for Each Other." It is Jackie Taylor who plays the year-old son of the couple in this story of love and marriage that very nearly goes on the rocks. The idea of a baby's illness bringing the parents together may be hackneyed, but it has a tremendous heart tug as worked out in this Selznick film. Miss Lombard is more attractive than ever and Stewart does one of his best performances. The Ohio is showing it.

Fighting Prosecutor.

Edward G. Robinson is a college professor who turns fighting prosecutor when called upon to clean up a city in "I Am the Law." He is given an opportunity to put his theories into practice when he is named special prosecutor and immediately locks horns with the worst element in the city. John Beal, Barbara O'Neil, Wendy Barrie and Otto Kruger are in the cast. Also on the Ritz bill is "The Shining Hours" with Joan Crawford, Margaret Sullavan, Melvyn Douglas and Robert Young.

Most Popular Hero.

The seven tiny fellows who grew out of a Hartz mountain legend and came into picture beings in the imagination of Walt Disney are still among the most popular characters in the world even though they made their screen appearance some months ago. Dopey, the most popular of them all, was intended only for comic relief to the loveliness of Snow White. But he swept the world with his charm. "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" remains at the Park theater through Wednesday.

"Three Comrades."

One of the best pictures of the year comes to the Majestic Tuesday when "Three Comrades" is presented there. This is the film version of Eric Remarque's post-war novel of three returned soldiers who strive valiantly to make a place for themselves in the economic scheme after the war. The comrades are Robert Taylor, Franchot Tone and Robert Young. The girl who comes briefly into their lives is Margaret Sullavan, whose performance made her a runner-up this year for the best performance given by an actress. The second film is Dennis O'Keefe in "The Chaser."

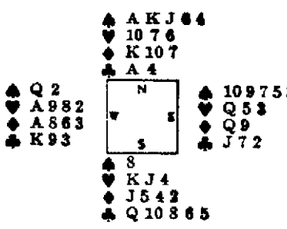
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PLAYING PROBABILITIES

All observant players have learned that the holder of a weak hand is likely to make a short-suit lead against a no trump contract, in the hope that he may hit upon the long suit of his partner, who probably has some side re-entries for it. Conversely, someone who has made a length-showing fourth-best lead is likely to have high cards for re-entries right in his own hand. Bearing that in mind can guide the declarer in his selection of the way to play any particular suit, counting the long-suit leader as more likely than his partner to hold any particular high card.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable).

South got into a No trump game contract on this deal by the fairly simple procedure of North's 1-Spade bid, his own 2-Clubs, North's 2-Spades, South's 2-No Trump and North's 3-No trump.

When West led the heart 2 South promptly placed four cards of the suit in his hand, but more important in this case reckoned that any single high honor was a bit more likely to be held by him than by East. When East played the Q on the dummy's low card, that made it still more likely that East lacked any particular high honor.

After South took the first trick with the heart K, he played over to the club A, then led the club 4 back. East played the 2, and South faced the critical play of the hand. If West had the K, the 10 was the correct choice: if the J, and Q, would be better. Reckoning the K probably with West, South played the 10, which forced the K. West offered the A and another heart, then South ran game by the simple expedient of being successful with the spade finesse.

If South had played the Q on that second round club trick, he would have been set either two or three tricks, depending on what he did next time he was in the lead.

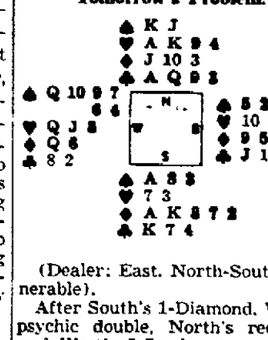
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable).

After South's 1-Diamond, West's psychic double, North's redouble and West's 2-Spades, how should the bidding go on this deal?

Check Up On Way You Treat You

By MME. QUI VIVE

Take inventory. Answer these questions truthfully. Don't underestimate your good points, don't exaggerate your beauty griefs.

What about your complexion? Do you scour it every night, tip-tap in the cream that will keep the surface smooth, and insure against the ravages of atmospheric dust, harsh winds and old Pop Time?

There is the matter of your hair. Are you sticking to the same old arrangement of which you are tired? Do you brush your ambrosial locks, friction your scalp every night, never postpone the shampoo until your glorious crown looks dull and sick?

Do the smarty members of your family give you a whack on the back and tell you to stand straight? Poor posture ruins the finest figure. The slumping habit becomes permanent. It causes displacement of the stomach and intestines, interferes with digestion.

Have you started to take on a teeny-weeny bit of weight?

How about your disposition? Have you lived long enough to understand that any criticism on your part is likely to cause a family fuss?

Are you kind to your eyes, your little footies and your teeth, giving them the attention and consideration that they deserve? Do you trot-trot to the dentist twice a year? Do you protect your hands when you do rough work? Do you choose your clothes with infinite care so you will always look your tip-top best? Cross your heart; tell the truth.

Banana waffles are a pleasing variation and are easy to make. Just add 1½ cups finely chopped bananas to your favorite waffle batter. Then serve them with tiny broiled sausages. You'll find the combination is very good.

Add Zip to Early Spring Parties

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Now's the time to come to the aid of hostesses with frivolous ideas that are guaranteed to give a zip to those early spring luncheons.

Here's a good starter for that luncheon party! Trim thin slices of white bread to make three-inch squares. Spread squares with deviled ham and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Press nuts into ham. Add slight sprinkle of grated onion. Bring together two opposite corners of the bread squares. Fasten with toothpicks to form cornucopias. Brush outside bread lightly with melted butter. Toast in broiler or hot oven.

Dresden Patties.

Dresden Patties make a nice luncheon entree. Eight two-inch slices of stale bread, one egg, two tablespoons milk, salt and creamed salmon will serve eight. Trim crusts from bread; cut into heart shapes, hollow out each heart with a sharp knife to make a case, leaving walls and base about one-fourth inch. Dip each heart in mixture of slightly beaten egg, milk and salt. Toast in 375 degree F. oven about 15 minutes or until golden brown. Fill with creamed salmon that is made by making a white sauce of four tablespoons melted butter, four tablespoons flour and two cups milk; adding one-half teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper and two cups canned flaked salmon. Cook until salmon is thoroughly heated and serve in the bread shells.

Rosy Ring.

A salad mold is always an appropriate spring luncheon dish. Rosy Ring requires two cups tomato juice, one small bay leaf, three or four whole cloves, two slices onion, salt and pepper to taste, teaspoon lemon juice, mayonnaise, one package lemon-flavored gelatin, one cup finely-cut celery, one-half cup shredded cabbage, one-half cup fresh grapefruit segments, diced. Simmer tomato juice, bay leaf, cloves and onion for 15 minutes. Strain, add salt, pepper and lemon juice. Measure liquid and hot tomato juice to make two cups. Pour over lemon gelatin, stir until dissolved; chill until partially set. Add celery, turn into seven-inch ring mold; chill until firm. Turn onto large platter, garnish with greens and fill center with shredded cabbage and grapefruit segments, seasoned with salt, pepper, sugar and lemon juice with mayonnaise to moisten. Sprinkle generously with paprika.

Ice Cream Recipe.

What nicer event for the debut of a brand new ice cream than a spring luncheon, ask we? To make about one quart or eight servings of this ice cream thrill take one cup mashed ripe bananas (about two or three), two teaspoons lemon juice, one-fourth cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup milk, two egg whites, one cup whipping cream, two egg yolks, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup finely-crushed peanut brittle. Mix together bananas, lemon juice. Add sugar, salt and milk, and stir until mixed. Beat egg whites until stiff; beat cream until thickened but not stiff; beat egg yolks until stiff. Combine bananas, egg whites, egg yolks, cream and vanilla; then turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator. Freeze, with indicator at coldest setting, stirring every 30 minutes, until mixture begins to hold its shape, adding peanut brittle during final stirring, then freeze until firm.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, March 21.

AN EXTREMELY lively day is forecast from the ruling planetary configurations. There may be much commotion and excitement in all departments of being, but happy culminations of all this activity depend upon rigorous self-restraint, sound judgment and a generally composed and affable state of mind. While there are excellent opportunities for success, progress, desirable fulfillments, as well as personal gratification, there also are difficulties and dangers.

Those whose birthday it is will find a year full of action, with probably much stirring in new directions. There may be doubtful issues, with openings for trouble through strife, enmity, recklessness and impetuosity, but with restraint, composure, cool judgment and right action there are auguries for much gratification, benefits and fulfillment of high hopes and wishes.

A child born on this day may have much versatility and force of character, and at the same time some difficult or inconsistent traits. While powerful and aggressive, it may also have moods and eccentricities.

My Neighbor Says:

Cooks should remember that no matter how good and tender the greens, or how full of mineral salts and vitamins, the best greens can be ruined in the cooking. Don't pour off the water in which you cook your greens but gently simmer it down so that the mineral salts are retained in the greens. Overcooking results in the loss of the green color and attractiveness of greens and the finished product may often be served so attractively as to make the food more popular.

Moose Bowlers Roll Into Second Place In Inter-City

Dale Cleckner, Freddy Willis Gain High Positions In Singles Event Over Week-End.

SLAPPING the maples for a hefty 2985 count, Moose Lodge No. 2 team rolled into second place in the five-man division of the Inter-City bowling tournament in Findlay over the week-end.

The lodge team's total was 55 pins short of the first place total shot by the Findlay All-Stars, present leader with a 3040 series.

Art Hilborn led the Moose scoring with a 626 total, while Johnny Leppo contributed a 603 and Farrell Hipp an even 600.

None of the Mansfield teams which bowled over the week-end threatened the leaders, the Mansfield Printers being next high with 2784 to which Charles Jones contributed a 639 and Carl Heilman a 607. The Meder Recreation team hoisted a 2706 and the Office Cafe was low with a 2481.

Dale Cleckner and Freddy Willis placed second and third, respectively, in the singles division. The former collected a 675 total from games of 192, 266 and 217, and the latter came through with a 235, 188 and 250 for a 673.

The other Mansfield 600's in the individual event were rolled by Roy Craig, who shot a 643, closing with a 266; Bob Flood, 620; Jack Applan, 616; Mike Meder, 616, and Winnie Cleckner, 614.

Mansfield bowlers failed to disturb the leaders in the doubles division, Willis and Johnny Leppo leading with a 1125.

Women Win Bulk of Tiffin Prizes.

THREE of the four championships awarded in the Women's Inter-City tournament in Tiffin Sunday were received by Mansfield keglers.

Mrs. Sophia Meder won the bulk of the prizes by finishing first in the doubles, singles and all-events, shooting a grand total of 1605 in the three events.

She doubled with Thelma Linster to take the tandem honors with a 1094 total, shooting a 556 to her partner's 538, and scored a 552 to win the singles crown.

Mrs. Meder's Meder Recreation No. 1 team finished third in the five-woman division with a 2336 count. Pauline Shively came through with a brilliant 574, counted from games of 177, 185 and 212, to lead Harvey's Sample Shoes to a 2311 total and third place. Helen Mamber paced the Office Cafe to a 2067 count, and the Meder Recreation No. 2 rolled a 2115.

Trailing the Meder-Linster duo in the doubles were McMullen-Hilborn, 969; Handwork-Dinaman, 920, and Altman-Yingling, 828. Handwork rolled a 540 in the singles, and Dintaman came through with a 525.

Win In Galion Rifle Tourney

Mansfield Marksmen Take Team Shooting Honors.

Mansfield marksmen fared extremely well in the gun tournament staged in the Galion armory over the week-end.

Led by Fred Sells' 288 and Lloyd Barr's 283, the Mansfield team won the five-man championship with a grand total of 1382 points. Other members of the Mansfield team were Dale Arnold, 278; Fleet Corwin, 273; Emmett Cosgrove, 260.

Sells tied for first place with Charles Hutchison of Galion in the individual prone event, but lost the title on the toss of a coin. Sells finished second in the individual off-hand shoot, which required 20 shots at a Scheutzen target, compiling a 478 score out of a possible 500. The event was won by Mrs. Florence Rhinehart of Galion with a 492 aggregate.

Mrs. Rhinehart also won the individual aggregate, while Lloyd Steffee of Galion won the handicap individual shoot. The handicap team event was taken by the Galion "M" team, and the 20-shot prone honors were taken by Ray Drever of Crestline.

Trophies and medals were awarded to the winners at a banquet held in the basement of the Peace Lutheran church Saturday evening. Lloyd Barr of Mansfield served as toastmaster.

First M. E. Yields 3 Goals in 17 to 9 Win.

Showing up strong defensively, First M. E. limited First Episcopal to three field goals while turning in a 17 to 9 victory in a Class C Church league game at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday. A free throw in the second period was the only point obtained in the first three periods. Dials led the winners with 11 points.

First Presbyterian broke a 9-9 tie in the third period to defeat St. John's Evangelical, 21 to 14, and South Main outpointed St. Paul's Lutheran, 25 to 19. The Boy Rangers won on a forfeit from Park Avenue Baptist.

Jimmy Smith Features 287 In 701 Series

Leads Lumbermens Bowlers to 2903 Total, Win.

Failure to hit the headpin with his 11th ball cost Howard (Jimmy) Smith a perfect game at the Meder alleys Saturday night.

Bowling with the Lumbermens Mutuals against Mt. Vernon in a special match, Smith opened his first game with 10 straight strikes. He missed the headpin entirely with his next ball, leaving three pins standing. He collected a spare and then closed with another strike for a brilliant 287.

Smith finished his games on alleys 9 and 10 with scores of 204 and 210 for a snappy 701 series, and led his team to a 2903 to 2847 victory over the visitors. The insurance men opened with a 1022.

Russian Heads Friday's Card

Grandovitch Meets Sexton in Armory Headliner.

Frank Sexton, leading claimant of the state heavyweight wrestling title, will meet the strongest competition he has encountered in a year when he opposes Leon Grandovitch of Russia in the Armory here Friday night. Tim Nolan, matchmaker of the Quality Club, announced late yesterday that he had signed the "Russian Lion."

Grandovitch leaped in to national prominence last Tuesday when he defeated Friedrich Von Schacht, towering Nazi storm trooper, in a match at Columbus. Von Schacht, who stands 6 feet, 6 inches in height and weight 250 pounds, has been burning up eastern mats in recent months.

The Russian is no small man himself. He scales 240 pounds and is over six feet tall.

Friday's card will be dominated by heavyweights, according to word from the Qualtiy Club. Tickets for the affair go on sale tomorrow at Hunt's News depot and the Ringside cafe.

Rookie from Newark May Win Steady Job

By DILLON GRAHAM, AP Sports Writer.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The Keller menace has been blinking at George Selkirk from afar for two years. Now it has caught up with him and cast its broad shadow over Twinkletoes' shoulder.

But Selkirk is accustomed to trouble. A jinx has pursued him ever since he joined the Yankees a few years ago. He's managed to box his way out of clinches before and he figures he can outpoint Charlie Keller, the Newark bludgeoneer.

Selkirk is the fly-chaser who was assigned to carry on when Babe Ruth left the Yankees. He inherited Babe's famous old No. 3 uniform and, for a while, had Babe's spot in the batting order. That was a tough spot—to be compared with the great Bambino every day in every park in the American league. Selkirk was no Ruth, but he held his job.

Graham

Two years ago, after a fine start, he injured his shoulder diving after a fly ball. That hampered him all season. Last year a bunged up wrist cramped his style.

He's in great shape now as the Yankees drill in their Florida park and no one knows better than George that it will take his best performance to keep from being ousted by the 22-year-old, International league ace who spreads 190 solid pounds over a 5-foot-10 frame.

Keller's B. A.: .365.

This Keller likely would have been a major-league star long since if he had been owned by any club except the Yankees. But the way the Yanks have waltzed away with world's championships the last three years they haven't needed him.

A sensation with the University of Maryland nine, Keller hopped direct to the Newark Bears. He was just as much of a sensation there. Before he was 21 he led the league at bat. He was the batting leader again last year in his second pro season. (Keller was tops among players in 100 or more games, although Catcher Warren Rosar—another Yankee rookie—hit .387 in 91 contests.)

Gallagher May Stay.

Keller is bubbling over with confidence. He thinks he can hit well enough to hold his own with any of the Yankee sluggers.

"I'll get my share of long hits but I'm not a home run slugger," he says. "I just slap that ball out for a safe hit without concentrating on distance."

There's some talk of converting Keller into a pull hitter, but Charlie doesn't favor it.

"If a man can hit, why not let him bat his own way?" he asks, with a bit of logic.

The Yanks will have Joe DiMaggio and Tommy Henrich as two outfield fixtures. Keller and George Selkirk will battle it out for the other spot with Jake Powell around for occasional duty. If McCarthy elects to carry six outfielders, Joe Gallagher, a huge 210-pounder with fullback shoulders, will get the call.

Mansfield Nemesis Wins State Tourney

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The 1939 state high school basketball tournament went down in history today as conclusive proof that the payoff comes to those teams who stick strictly to orthodox play and rely on a well-planned passing attack rather than a loose offense.

The Class A and B titlists, Akron North, victor over Mansfield in a first round game, and North Canton, never deviated from their well-geared speedy offenses, which employed a rapid-fire pass attack down the floor to the line of defense and then short, sharp flips until a man was free to shoot from under the hoop.

In contrast, those fives which consistently displayed the "shoot from anywhere" theory eventually lost to the law of averages and their own inability to master the quick passing, short shooting offense.

Teamwork Wins.

Akron North and North Canton simply had well-balanced fives whose players worked well together and refused to depart from the style of basketball in which they hand been thoroughly trained. The success of their teams depended on no one man but rather on the ability of the whole five to work together as a unit in every game.

In the finals in the Coliseum Saturday night, Akron North breezed to a 47-to-38 victory over a "dark horse" Cincinnati Roger Bacon outfit which could not cope with North's blinding speed and deadly accuracy.

North Canton beat Sandusky St. Mary's, 24 to 23, to gain its crown. It was a last-minute victory over a game outfit. A free throw by Forward Mohler in the last 90 seconds of play clinched the tilt for the Stark countians.

Every state tournament brings one or two outstanding players who deserve all the credit they get. This year, Akron North's Ralph Vinciguerra and Sandusky's Arthur Link, both forwards, were easily the best performers on the floor.

A swivel-hipped lad who had an uncanny knack of handling the ball and taking one-handed setup shots, Vinciguerra was the backbone of the Akron five. He made 49 points during the tournament, only three less than the number accumulated by Roger Bacon's center, John Paul, who was high Class A scorer.

Link Without Peer.

Link had no peer in either class. Aggressive, speedy, a deadeye on short shots, the diminutive Sandusky counted 64 tallies in four games to be high man for the tourney.

The tournament in general was staged without a flaw against a background of colorful banks and well-organized cheering sections. The total paid attendance for the three days was 31,607 against last year's all-time high of 30,064.

Moose Keglers Rip 3087 Pins To Win Match

Hipp's 670 Leads Lodgemen to Clean Sweep.

Passing the 1,000 figure in each game, the Mansfield No. 1 Moose team swept its Lodge Traveling league series with Barberton at the Meder alleys Saturday with a 3087 total.

Paced by Farrell Hipp's 670, the Mansfield team compiled games of 1009, 1014 and 1064 to win scoring honors at the Mansfield alleys over the week-end.

Hipp put together scores of 203, 223 and 244 for his big series, with Mike Meder next high in the Mansfield team's scoring list with a 649. Brig Young and Art Hilborn contributed totals of 610 and 604. Weaver paced the visitors with a 658, which included a 258 game.

Three New Names Appear In 5-Man

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Three new names appeared today in the list of first five leaders in the five-man team event of the American bowling congress tournament, but the F. Ziehm company quintet of Cleveland continued to head the standings with a 2924.

Breidt's Brewing company number one team of Elizabeth, N. J., jumped into second place with a total of 2,905 on games of 967-1009-929.

The Coca Colas of Lancaster, O., took over fourth place, rolling games of 942-907-1018 for a total of 2867, and the Phelps Dodge Cooper Products company number one team of Elizabeth, N. J., climbed into fifth place with a 2862 total on games of 895-931-1036.

PLAYOFF TO DETERMINE FOE FOR OHIO STATERS

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—The winner of basketball play-offs between University of Oregon, University of Texas, University of Oklahoma and Utah State college will represent the west against Ohio State, eastern division winner, in Chicago March 27 in the finals of the National Collegiate Athletic association tournament. Utah meets Oklahoma and Oregon faces Texas tonight, with the victors clashing tomorrow night. Ohio State defeated Villanova, 53 to 36 in the finals of the eastern division Saturday.

AMERICAN WINS TABLE TITLE FOR FIRST TIME

TOLEDO—(AP)—For the first time in three years the national table tennis championship was held today by an American, 22-year-old Jimmy McClure, smashing cross-court sharpshooter from Indianapolis.

McClure, seeded No. 3, trounced the number two seeded Tibor Hazi of Hungary in four games last night in the singles finals of the ninth annual U. S. open tournament. Scores were: 21-14, 21-15, 18-21, 21-17.

Breaks Silence, Calls Slapnicka

Lary to Talk Salary Terms With Club Head Today; Webb Stars for Tribe.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(UP)—Lyn Lary, who shows up as shortstop each spring for the Cleveland Indians after figuring in "mental trades" each winter, comes to town today to talk 1939 salary with Business Chief C. C. Slapnicka.

The dapper shortstop has avoided telephone calls ever since the Tribe arrived in camp, but he broke his silence Sunday and called Slapnicka.

"He said he wants to come over and talk about his contract," Slapnicka quoted. "Evidently he can't swing a deal to go to some other club. You know we told him to go ahead and contact another club for a trade when he refused our first contract."

Slapnicka believes Lary will sign with little persuasion but there was some doubt if he will regain his regular infield position, at least immediately.

Jimmy Webb played superbly at the post yesterday as the Indians downed the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 0. Webb handled nine chances in the field with graceful motions and pounded out a home run in his first time at bat to start the 15-hit Tribe attack. He beat out two infield taps later to get three-for-four.

"He certainly looked great," declared Manager Oscar Vitt. "I should say Lary will have to hustle to take back the job."

On a par with Webb's performance was the two-hit pitching of Bob Feller, Tom Drake and Joe Dobson. Feller appears on the verge of his greatest season with a better developed change of pace that had the Athletic batters grounding weakly for infield outs.

Pennant Bee Buzzes In Reds' Camp.

TAMPA, Fla.—(UP)—Despite shushings by cautious Manager Bill McKechnie, the pennant bee buzzed today in the camp of the Cincinnati Reds.

The first appearance in the Red infield of Bill Werber was the cause for the all-optimistic commotion. Werber, obtained from the Philadelphia Athletics last week, played like the "infield insurance" the Reds have been seeking at third base in yesterday's 8 to 1 triumph over the Boston Bees.

The $25,000 acquisition was worth every dime as he handled two chances without a bobble and scintillated in the 15-minute pregame infield drill. Twice in practice he sped to the left for hard hits and whipped the ball to first base without a hitch.

His performance was regarded somewhat the more impressive because Bill has taken only a half dozen indoor workouts this spring with the University of Maryland team.

At the plate, he failed to get a hit on four trips but smashed the ball hard each time.

"He looked pretty sweet to me," exclaimed the usually silent McKechnie in a burst of enthusiasm, "I think we'll be set at third base this season. But remember, pennants are won after the regular season starts and not before."

Lee Grissom, who was on the shelf with injuries most of last season, turned in another fine spring pitching performance. He held the Bees to two hits and no runs in six innings.

SET FOR SPRINGFIELD

COLUMBUS—(AP)—American Legion officials said today the Legion's state junior baseball tournament would be held in Springfield Aug. 2-5.

SUTHERLAND'S SUCCESSOR TO BE NAMED TONIGHT

PITTSBURGH—(U.P.)—Appointment of a successor to Dr. John B. Sutherland as head football coach at the University of Pittsburgh will be announced tonight following a meeting of the school's board of trustees.

Charles Bowser, former assistant to Sutherland for several seasons, was expected to be named to replace the "Silent Scot," who resigned from Pitt after 15 years as head coach, because of differences over administration of the institution's new athletic code.

Sports Suffer Two Beatings

Stopped in Barberton and Willard Tourneys.

The Yuncker Sports dropped two games over the week-end to suffer elimination in as many independent basketball tournaments.

In a semi-final game in the Willard tourney Saturday, the Sports bowed to the defending champions, Birmingham Firemen, 43 to 35, and lost to Allman Transfers, 53 to 45, in a first round game in the Columbia A. C. tourney in Barberton Sunday.

The Sports had only five players available for the Barberton tourney, and it was necessary to insert one of the team's followers into the lineup in the third period when Nana went out on fouls.

The Mansfield quintet was setting the pace when the lineup was weakened by the ejection. It held a 25 to 24 lead at the intermission. Johnny Reece tallied 14 points to lead the Sports.

The Yuncker team, however, did not return trophyless. The Sports were presented with a trophy at Barberton for being the team coming the greateset distance and for sportsmanship.

The Akron O'Neil Moncos won the Barberton tournament, defeating the Killian Celtics, 53 to 42, in the finals.

The Cleveland Celtics defeated Birmingham, 59 to 46, to win the Willard tourney, while the East Akron Castings won over the Akron Favorite Knits, 45 to 41, to take the Class B crown.

Mansfield Boy Helps Disprove Ancient Theory About Athletes

S. Farnum Coffin, senior at Oberlin college from Mansfield, is among the 54 Oberlin college varsity athletes who are helping to disprove the old theory that an athlete can be only an athlete and nothing else.

A survey made following the award of letters for the 1938-39 varsity sport season showed that more than 80 per cent of the Oberlin college men who have won their varsity "O's" in the past three years are taking an active part in affairs of campus organizations. Seventeen of these are definitely outstanding leaders by virtue of their holding responsible positions in class and general organizations.

Coffin, captain and distance man on the Ohio conference championship track team, is a senior. He was sports editor of the Hi-O-Hi last year, and is a member of several campus organizations.

The survey also showed that 67 of the 373 men in the college of arts and sciences for the three upper classes, or approximately 18 per cent of the men eligible for varsity competition have won their letters. Fifty-four of the 67 have won their numerals in one or more sports.

STEELS, MOTORS IN FOREFRONT OF PRICE CLIMB

Stock Exchange Shows Less Nervousness Over New European Developments.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market did better all around today with leaders recovering as much as 2 or more points of last week's decline.

Steels, motors and specialties were in the forefront of the rally. Dealings, fairly active at the opening, slackened later.

Brokers attributed the comeback partly to the belief of speculative forces the list had been oversold. Although war tension abroad was still pronounced, less nervousness over European developments was evident in Wall street.

Prominent on the forward swing were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber and Consolidated Edison.

Commission houses reported selling from abroad had about evaporated. Securities at Amsterdam pushed upward but slipped at London and Paris. Commodities were uneven.

Only mild encouragement, marketwise, was found in the weekly survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that while demand for the metal continued to improve slowly, gains were spotty and somewhat less than had been expected.

Holders of merchandise company shares noted forecasts department store sales in April should show an increase of about 4 per cent over last year despite the earlier Easter.

'Y' WEEKS START

Visitors in Spotlight as Observance Begins.

The annual observance of "visitor's weeks" gets under way today at the Y. M. C. A. with a number of special programs being arranged for the occasion. "Visitor's weeks" continue through the rest of the month.

Nine different groups are scheduled to meet at the "Y" this evening, and 11 meetings are scheduled for Tuesday. Heading Tuesday's schedule will be a "dad's night" observance by the "Y" Junior Rifle club. The club meets at 7 p. m., followed by a shoot for club members and their fathers. The rifle range will be open until 10 p. m., according to Ralph B. Chapman, general secretary.

Formal induction ceremonies of the newly organized Phalanx fraternity was held at the "Y" Sunday afternoon, with 11 members of the Marion chapter in charge. Vernon Smeltzer is president of the local chapter.

Activities scheduled for Tuesday are: 9 a. m., Westinghouse gym and swim group No. 3; 2 p. m., woodcraft shop and Cadets swim class; 3:45, Carpenter boys gym period; 4:30, Newman school gym period; 5:30, Westinghouse volleyball class; 6:45, Church "B" basketball games; 7, boxing class, Junior Rifle club, and the Freshman Hi-Y club.

DIES AT AGE 77

Miss Ida Garber Was Native of Bellville; Rites Tuesday.

BELLVILLE—Miss Ida M. Garber, 77, a native of Bellville, died at her home here Sunday morning.

Miss Garber was born in Bellville, and was a member of the Universal church here. Surviving are a brother William and a sister Mrs. Clara Oyster both of Bellville.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the family home with Rev. Stanley C. Stall of Norwalk officiating. Burial will be in the Bellville cemetery.

STRICKEN AT WILLARD

WILLARD—Mrs. Artie Irvin, 66, wife of Moses Irvin, died at her home early today. She is survived by her husband and two adopted sons, Frank and Marion, both at home. Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday at the Church of God at Guinea Corners. Rev. Edward Elliott will officiate and burial will be in the New Haven cemetery.

SCARLET FEVER FATAL

BUCYRUS — Private funeral services were held at the home today for Donald Price, two-and-a-half-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Egar Price, who died of scarlet fever Saturday afternoon. Burial was in Broken Sword cemetery.

WOUNDS KILL GIRL

PARKERSBURG, W. Va.—(U.P.)—Leda Smith, 8, daughter of Verd Smith of Reedsville, O., died in a hospital here today of a shotgun wound inflicted accidentally by her brother, Verd, jr. The gun discharged as the boy loaded it.

Facts For Business Men

People buy newspapers because they are a daily necessity.

Where else, in the world of advertising, can you expect people to pay for the privilege of reading your sales message?

YOPEDIO SEATS EIGHT SETS OF OFFICERS HERE

County Heads and Leaders for Seven Districts Chosen at Annual Conference.

Eight sets of officers were installed at closing session of the 15th annual Richland County Yopedio conference Saturday evening in the Senior high school auditorium.

Those installed included the county officers and heads of the seven county districts who were elected at a business meeting Saturday afternoon at the Park Avenue Baptist church

The county officers are Conrad Diehm, Mansfield, president; Selwyn Copeland, Amoy, vice-president; Mary Naomie Pittenger, secretary; Rodger Pugh, Shelby, treasurer, and Rev. Richard Wolf, Plymouth, and Arthur Boyce, Shelby advisers. Diehm, who served as vice-president last year, succeeds Miss Mabel Lynch, of Shelby.

About 200 young people, representing nearly every county church, attended sessions of the one-day conference at the Park Avenue Baptist church and Senior high school.

Rev. G. H. Rowe of Indianapolis, Ind., was the principal speaker, while discussion leaders were Prof. M. A. Stuckey of Ashland college, Rev. M. P. Paetznick of Shelby, Rev. Arthur Staples of Shelby, and Rev. Grover E. Swoyer, Mrs. Charles Ray, H. D. Bishop, Harold W. Arlin of Mansfield.

Hear Trio and Duo.

Musical numbers during the evening meeting were furnished by the Hayden trio of Mansfield, comprised of Ann Jeannette Klinger, Joseph Pival and Frank Pival and Paul Ely and Betty Shirley, both of Shiloh.

District officers chosen are: District 1, Plymouth and Shiloh, Gertrude McQuate, president, Ladonna Alexander, vice president; Stanley Huston, secretary; Earl Huston, treasurer, all of Shiloh. District 2, Shelby—Gene Eckert, president; Leland Ruhl, vice president; Clifford Smith, treasurer, and Frances Pugh, secretary.

District 3, Butler, Bloomingrove, Weller and Franklin townships—Leon Lantz, president; Mervin Lehman, vice president; Charlotte Hughes, secretary, and James Tolles, treasurer; District 4, Mansfield—Thelbert Nikolaus, president; Steve Colenkas, vice president; Eloise Husung, secretary; Hobart Robinson, treasurer; William Boldt, publicity; Alvan Fankhauser, adviser, and Charles Gilbert, Mifflin, assistant adviser.

District 5, Bellville and Newville—Charles Pearl, Bellville, president; Howard Taylor, Lexington, vice president; Maurice Garber, Bellville, treasurer; Betty Dill, Lexington, secretary, and Norman Swigart, Lexington, adviser; District 6, Little Washington and Lucas—Wilma Berry, Lucas, president; Dwane Culler, Lucas, vice president; Arlene Fike, R. D. 5, Mansfield, secretary, and Reed Palmer, Lucas, treasurer; District 7, Butler and Newville—Phyles Snyder, R. D. 2, Bellville, president; Sarah Beal, Butler, vice president; Arlene Carsey, R. D. 2, Bellville, secretary, and Robert Arnold, Butler, treasurer.

The Director of Public Service and Safety of the City of Mansfield, Ohio, will, at 12 o'clock noon Eastern Standard Time, April 5, 1939, in his office in City Hall, open and publicly read, sealed proposals received by him prior to that time, for the improvement of the Garbage Department by furnishing and delivering the following equipment, F.O.B. Mansfield, Ohio:

ITEM I. One fully enclosed Sanitary Refuse Collection Unit having a capacity of not less than eight cubic yards equipped with mechanical low loading hopper mounted upon a subframe permitting the entire unit to be removed from truck chassis and painted to match truck chassis with the necessary lettering, said unit to be mounted upon truck chassis furnished by said City, all according to specifications on file in the office of said Director of Public Service and Safety, a copy of which specifications shall accompany said bid

ITEM II. One new 1939 truck chassis without body of not less than 1½ to 2 ton capacity, capable of carrying a body load and a pay load of not less than 10,000 pounds, said chassis providing a minimum distance of 71½" from rear face of cab to center line of rear axle and minimum distance of 98½" from rear face of cab to end of frame for mounting purposes; said chassis to be equipped with three man capacity cab, complete lighting equipment front and rear, starting equipment, governor, dual rear wheels with ten ply tires, puncture proof tubes, helper springs, front fenders and running boards extending only to rear face of cab with no rear fenders required, cab and chassis to be painted as required by said city and the successful bidder to deliver chassis for body mounting purposes as directed by said city.

Each proposal must contain the name or names of the party or parties making the same, and of all parties interested therein, and be accompanied by a certified check on a solvent bank in Ohio, in the sum of $25.00 payable to the Director of Public Service and Safety, or a surety bond in the sum of $25.00 to the satisfaction of said Director, as surety that if said bid is accepted, a contract will be entered into and its performance properly secured.

The total bid submitted for both items No. 1 and No. 2 shall not exceed

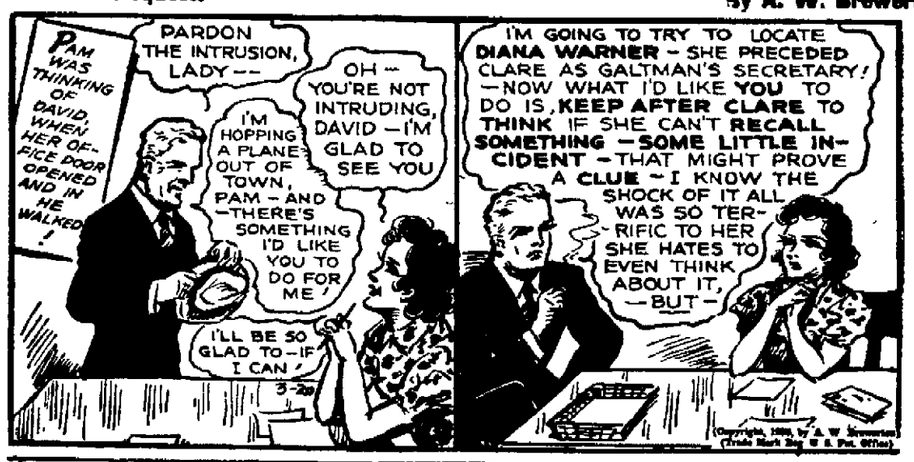
PAM—A Request. By A. W. Brewerton



PAM WAS THINKING OF DAVID, WHEN HER OFFICE DOOR OPENED AND IN HE WALKED!
PARDON THE INTRUSION, LADY—
OH—YOU'RE NOT INTRUDING, DAVID—I'M GLAD TO SEE YOU
I'M HOPPING A PLANE OUT OF TOWN, PAM—AND—THERE'S SOMETHING I'D LIKE YOU TO DO FOR ME!
I'LL BE SO GLAD TO—IF I CAN!
I'M GOING TO TRY TO LOCATE DIANA WARNER—SHE PRECEDED CLARE AS GALTMAN'S SECRETARY!—NOW WHAT I'D LIKE YOU TO DO IS, KEEP AFTER CLARE TO THINK IF SHE CAN'T RECALL SOMETHING—SOME LITTLE INCIDENT—THAT MIGHT PROVE A CLUE—I KNOW THE SHOCK OF IT ALL WAS SO TERRIFIC TO HER SHE HATES TO EVEN THINK ABOUT IT, —BUT——SHE MUST! KEEP AFTER HER, PAM!—THERE'S NO SUCH THING AS A "PERFECT CRIME"—THERE'S BOUND TO BE A CLUE OF SOME KIND—LEFT BY THE GUILTY PERSON—NO MATTER HOW WELL THE CRIME WAS PLANNED!—BUT, SO FAR I'VE FAILED TO FIND IT! CLARE MUST HELP!
GOOD-BYE, PAM—AND GOOD LUCK!—I'LL BE BACK BY TOMORROW, I THINK GOOD-BYE, DAVID—I'LL DO MY BEST—WITH CLARE!
DAVID WAS RIGHT!
POOR CLARE IS STILL IN SUCH A HIGHLY NERVOUS STATE SHE SHRINKS FROM THINKING OF HER TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

NAZIS PREPARE TO TAKE MEMEL

Ribbentrop and Urbsys was said also to have touched upon the question of Lithuania's role in the European concert of nations.

It was vigorously denied in responsible quarters that anything like a protectorate over Lithuania was intended.

Responsible circles indicated that Memel was one of the chief topics under discussion last night at a conference of Hitler with various trusted lieutenants.

It was also admitted that the precarious state of relations with Great Britain was likewise a major topic and that the recall of Ambassador Johannes Welczek from Paris, as a parallel measure to French Ambassador Robert Coulondre's departure from Berlin, was discussed.

Whether Germany would actually abrogate the 1935 naval agreement with Britain could not be learned. Informed German editors, however, predicted that Germany would take up the race in naval armaments as soon as practicable, at the same time bending every ounce of energy toward keeping up the strength of the air army.

Maintaining the air strength would be considered easy, because Germany obtained an excellent collection of airplanes from Czechoslovakia.

For the immediate future, government spokesmen intimated, German propaganda would be turned upon an alleged effort at London to hinder negotiations between Helmuth Wohlthat, German economic expert, and the Rumainian government for a trade agreement.

Goering Leaves Again.

Reports that Hitler intends soon to summon the Reichstag were dispelled when it was announced that Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering intends to resume tomorrow night his "holiday" on the Italian Riviera and at points further south. He was summoned back by the Chancellor from the "vacation" just before the entrance of German troops into Moravia-Bohemia.

Hitler, "augmentor of the Reich," took urgent council on the future of his newborn empire.

While Hitler was believed in consultation with high ministers at the chancellery after a survey of his territorial prizes, the Berlin midday newspaper B-Z Am Mittag cited the British-German treaty as evidence of a German desire for friendship and added warningly:

"If the impression were to obtain in Germany that the English people are to be psychologized into conceptions which would make them most embittered enemies of Germany's existence, then logically the German tendency in the direction of an equalizing readjustment would be put to a radical halt."

The Frankfurter Zeitung:

"It would not have been difficult for us to build a larger fleet. The meaning of the treaty seems not to have been grasped in England."

Dr. Karl Silex, for many years London correspondent of Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung and now the paper's editor-in-chief, published a "serious word to England." He asked:

"Is England for or against us, for or against our reich, for or against our continental position?"

Like his colleagues, Silex declared Germany could easily build more ships than the treaty limit of 35 per cent of Britain's fleet.

Crowds Cheer Hitler.

Hitler returned to Berlin last night acclaimed with the title of medieval German emperors, "augmentor of the reich."

Four times last night Hitler appeared spot-lighted on the chancellery balcony to receive the "heils" of a throng that welcomed him home from a tour of Germany's new protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

The multitude shouted for still another appearance but this was denied to them and an announcer urged the people to go home "because the fuehrer has important conferences before him."

Field Marshal Goering, who shared the balcony spotlight with Hitler last night, had struck the keynote of the homecoming welcome tendered to the fuehrer when he gave the nation's pledge "never to relinquish this gigantic, this great and tremendously courageous creation of yours, come what may."

YOUTH, 15, DIES

Louis Slaughter, Bucyrus, Was Victim of Tuberculosis.

BUCYRUS — Louis Slaughter, 15, died early Sunday at the home of his father, James Slaughter, 729 East Warren street. He had been ill for a long time with tuberculosis.

He was born Dec. 11 1923. He is survived by his father, three brothers, William, Charles and James, jr., all at home, and a sister, Mrs. Alfreda Jackson of Fostoria.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Lillian Morgan, and burial will be made in Oakwood cemetery.

KNOX WOMAN DIES AT 37

FREDERICKTOWN — Miss Alice Langley, 37, who resided five miles north of here, died Saturday afternoon at Mercy hospital Mt. Vernon, following an operation a week ago. She is survived by her father, L. C. Langley, and a brother, Robert, at home. Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. Tuesday at the Meredith funeral home here. DRIVER FREED IN TRAFFIC DEATH

Lexington Youth Exonerated as Arthur J. Sowers, 68, Dies of Injuries.

car had skidded nearly 100 feet over the slight snow before it struck Mr. Sowers. Lawrence said he applied the brakes when he saw Mr. Sowers in the highway, but he was unable to halt the car in time to avoid the accident.

With Lawrence in the car were three other Wooster college students. They were Richard Denton, 20, of Mt. Gilead; Jean Ingals, 20, and Jean Smeltz, 18, both of Cleveland Heights. The two couples were enroute to Wooster from Mt. Gilead.

Dr. M. C. Oakes, Lexington, who treated Mr. Sowers, said he suffered a skull fracture, fractures of both legs, the left arm and several ribs. He did not regain consciousness after the accident.

Funeral services were to be held at 2 p. m. today at the Snyder Funeral home in Lexington with Rev. Chester Thompson, pastor of the Congregational church, officiating. Burial will be in the Lexington cemetery.

A native of Lexington, Mr. Sowers had lived there all his life. He was not married. Surviving are a sister, Mrs. M. D. Graham, Lexington, and four brothers, C. W. Sowers, Lexington; G. V. Sowers, Mansfield, and Fred R. and George B. Sowers of Cleveland.

Two passengers on a Greyhound bus escaped injury Sunday afternoon when the bus went into a ditch at the junction of routes 30 and 39 in East Mansfield. Clarke Higgins, Sandusky, the driver, said he drove the bus into the ditch to avoid a collision with a car which came out of route 39 without stopping.

Cars driven by Raymond Frontz, Mansfield, and James Wray of near Shelby collided in Shelby Saturday, both drivers escaping injury.

Injured slightly when she was struck by a car in Shelby Saturday was Mrs Maude Glower of DeKalb, O She was hit by a car driven by D. W. Wilkinson of Shelby.

At least 10 persons died in Ohio accidents. Four of them were killed by trains.

NEW MET STARS CAN CHARM AS WELL AS SING

Glamor Finds Its Way Into the Opera and Pays Off at the Box Office.

CLEVELAND—For the first time in its 56 years of exciting history, the Metropolitan Opera association of New York counts on beauty to help the sale at the box office.

To Cleveland, for the spring festival of grand opera, March 27 to April 1, will came a bevy of beauties in the leading roles of the eight operas and with but one exception, they all have been glorified by Hollywood.

Lily Pons, petite and sparkling, started the string of stream-lined sopranos back in 1931 and influenced the quest for modern and even abbreviated costumes when she sang "Lakme" in a revealing if authentic dress.

Lily In Lucia.

Little Lily, for whom post offices, locomotives and rose bushes have been named, comes back to Cleveland this year to bring the opera week to a triumphant close in "Lucia di Lammermoor," sold out weeks in advance.

Grace Moore, the glamor girl of grand opera, according to the Hollywood press agents, has the electric quality of making everything she sings exciting and "Louise" has been expressly revived by the Metropolitan this year for her supple figure and brilliant blue eyes. Miss Moore also lends her blond beauty to "Manon" during the Cleveland run.

Opera's Glamor Girls.

Helen Jepson, who grew up in nearby Akron and whose parents now live in Cleveland, is a third of the beauties of the modern Metropolitan. An ardent sportswoman and swimmer, she startled even blase Broadway this season in the daring disrobing scene in "Thais," the opera she will sing in Cleveland. She will also sing the opening night in "Otello."

Marjorie Lawrence, sensational new sporano of the Metropolitan who showed her perfect figure to advantage first in "Salome" during the cold winter months, makes her Cleveland debut in "Die Walkuere," as the warrior maiden, Bruennhilde, and has the title role in "Tosca" as well.

The mature Kirsten Flagstad gracious and glorious, statuesque rather than buxom, is today one of the best loved stars on the stage. She will sing twice, too, in "Die Walkuere" and "Lohengrin."

Even the male stars are along Hollywood lines, with Lawrence Tibbett, Jan Kiepura, Armand Tokatyan, Norman Cordon, John Charles Thomas and the veteran Giovanni Martinelli able to hold their own with the best of the matinee idols.

Glamor truly has come to the Metropolitan.

Beauties Who'll Sing Opera In Cleveland

The new stars of the Metropolitan opera company aren't just top-ranking singers. They're top-ranking in beauty and glamor, too. And that added attraction is bringing bigger "gates" than ever in the history of the Metropolitan. Pictured here are some of the glamorous divas who will sing during opera week, opening next Monday, in Cleveland's Public hall.

GOLD IN THE AIR

Engineers Find Smoke Carries Precious Metal In Dust.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—(INS)—Smoke curling from the towering smokestacks of the Golden Cycle mill in Colorado Springs looks much the same as that from any householder's chimney. But there is a difference. Engineers have discovered the Golden Cycle smoke is gold-filled.

The engineers after weeks of tests found that five tons of dust fly up the big flue every 24 hours In that dust, assays show, is more than $100 worth of gold, which is carried away by the smoke daily.

CAT GETS LEGACY

Will Leaves It $2.50 Monthly For Luxurious Care.

ASTORIA, Ore.,—(INS)—By terms of the will of Albert Knutsen, retired fisherman, his cat, Fluffy will never want for cream and catnip. The will provided a guardian for Fluffy and $2.50 a month for "luxurious and loving" care for the cat as long as it shall live.

BROMFIELD PEERS INTO WOES OF OLD WORLD AS INSTITUTE CLOSES

Mansfield's own Louis Bromfield, noted author and lecturer, will speak at 8 p. m. today in the Mansfield Senior high school auditorium in the last of a series in five lectures on "International Understanding" sponsored by the Mansfield University and Rotary clubs.

LOUIS BROMFIELD

Because of Bromfield's appearance and the timeliness of his subject in face of the ever-changing conditions in the Old World, the closing session is expected to attract a capacity audience. Attendance at the lectures has increased steadily and about 1,000 persons heard last week's talk by Dr. No-Yong Park, a Chinese.

The novelist's topic this evening is "The Turmoil In Europe with Respect to its Effect on the People of Richland County."

Bromfield has first-hand information on the European picture, since he recently returned to Ohio after spending 15 years in France where he studied the economic, social and diplomatic picture.

Tonight's lecture, like all the others in the series, will be free to the public. Persons in the audience will be permitted to question the speaker on topics of current interest following his talk.

JAIL COOLS HIM

'Just the Weather' Man Says As Police Arrest Him for Theft.

DALLAS, Tex.,—(INS)—"What's the big idea?" asked Dallas plainclothes officers when they saw a man coming out of a hotel room with an electric fan under his arm—in the middle of winter. "You know how changeable this Texas weather is," the man explained. "You never know when there will be a spell of hot weather and I'm carrying the fan just to be prepared." Officers arrested the fan toter. The fan had been stolen.

QUEEN LIKES CRINOLINES

LONDON—(UP)—Crinolines have been approved by the queen for wear by debutantes at court presentations this year. She wore one last season, and gave the fashion a big lift Now they have been chosen as the equals of formal, straight court dresses.

FREED ON BOND

Accused Kidnaper In G.O.P. Scrap Waits Grand Jury Action.

POMEROY—(INS)—Charles Warner, of Pomeroy, today was free on $500 bond awaiting grand jury action on charges he kidnaped Timothy O. Bishop, 48, Meigs county republican committeeman.

A preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace J. W. McCullough, Bishop claimed Warner kidnaped him on Feb. 21 to prevent his presence at a committee meeting and thus assure a majority for one of two fractions fighting for patronage control.

FROZEN ASSETS

$138 Loss Changes Butcher's Ideas About Refrigerators.

DENVER—(INS)—Q. H. Massaro, who operates a meat market in Denver, vows that henceforth he will keep nothing but perishable foods in cold storage. Marraro told police that $138 he kept hidden in the icebox had disappeared.

WHERE'S BUOY?

$5,000 Whistling Buoy Breaks Loose From Naval Station.

ASTORIA, Ore., — (INS) — Lighthouse officials were chanting "Where is my wandering buoy tonight" after their new $5,000 lighted whistling buoy broke its anchorage in the Columbia river.

The buoy was reported heard at various points along the coast but it has not been returned to its owners yet.

ANGLERS HAVE BIG DAY

LONDON—(UP)—Two Lincolnshire anglers can lay claim to the record for a one-day catch of pike—they caught 29, and 13 of them weighed more than 10 pounds each. The two men ceased fishing only because their stock of bait ran out.

ALL 'TIED' UP

Japanese Found With 263 Neckties Wound About Body.

SEATTLE, Wash.—(INS—When Arimi Noguchi, 39-year-old Japanese, started down the gangplank of the Heian Maru on its arrival in Seattle from Japan, customs authorities thought he looked a little inflated. Investigating, they found 263 silk neckties, which he was attempting to smuggle off the boat, wound around his body. Noguchi was bound over to a federal grand jury.

Tired, Achy, Dizzy Feeling Every Morning Is Gone Now

Lucas, Ohio, Man Says He Feels Like His Old Self Again Since Vendol Relieved Constipation and Gave Him New Pep and Energy.

MR. "NATE" GOOD

"For a long time I had suffered from constipation which caused a lot of trouble for me,' said Mr "Nate" Good of Lucas, Ohio, in describing his experience to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store recently. "Every morning I'd feel as tired as I had the night before and would start the day with a dull, logy feeling, head ached, and would feel so dizzy I hated to begin my day's work I just seemed to ache all over, and never had any pep.

"As the day wore on I'd get hungry, but just as sure as I'd eat anything, I'd feel bloated with gas, get short of breath, and have a heavy uncomfortable feeling in my stomach. Seemed as though I always had a bad taste in my mouth.

"I heard a lot of praise for Vendol so got a bottle myself and a box of the little Vendol laxative tablets, and before long, I knew that all the good I heard about Vendol was true.

"I never had any medicine promote such active and natural elimination as this grand medicine, and now there is no more waking up feeling achy, tired, dizzy, drowsy, or headachy. My tongue is clear of coating, have a clean taste in my mouth, and I can eat and enjoy every meal with no gas or bloating I get deep, restful sleep every night and wake up in the mornings ready for my day's work.

"I'm thankful for the relief Vendol gave me, and hope those suffering the same way will give it a chance to help them too."

Visit the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., today and learn all about this superb mixture of extracts from Nature's Roots and Herbs combined with Alkalines. There is no charge, so don't delay. Leading druggists everywhere sell and recommend Vendol.—Adv.

TELEVISION EXPERT SAYS:

"It's Refreshing to Let up—Light up a mild, good-tasting Camel"

Copyright, 1939 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company Winston-Salem, N. C.

READY? A television broadcast is about to begin. Everyone feels the excitement Philco engineer Richard E. Waggener knows exactly what to do. He passes Camels, takes one himself . . . a mild, good-tasting Camel! "It's grand for one's poise to let up and light up a Camel."

RECEIVING with a home set: Mrs. Dorothy Temple, who runs a home, has a job too. She is enjoying a cigarette —a Camel—for, like so many women, she finds a delicate fragrance in Camels that is very appealing. "Camels taste so good," she says. "They do have a wonderful mildness."

THE SMILE OF ANTICIPATION: Dick finds a moment to enjoy a Camel. "Camels are different," he says, "mild, full-flavored I smoke all I want, and they never jangle my nerves."

250 WORDS PER MINUTE! Harry L. White can take down legal testimony up to 250 words per minute, for he is an expert court reporter. "After catching questions and answers on the fly, hour after hour, believe me, it feels good to let up—light up a Camel. 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!'" Camels have the rich, ripe flavor of finer, milder tobaccos. You'll find those choice tobaccos do make a difference!

MONDAY, MARCH 20, 1939.

Any mechanic will tell you that a few loose nuts can cause a lot of trouble.

Quite unfortunately, it seems unlikely that Hitler will get in the path of California's moving mountain.

Experiment In Self-Government.

FOSTORIA indulged in an interesting experiment last week. Council abolished all parking regulations and placed motorists "on their honor" to avoid over-long use of parking spaces, to refrain from double parking and to conform to reasonable rules of courtesy.

The idea was to give the honor system a 60-day tryout, but after four days of confusion it was decided that the plan wouldn't work—that Fostoria motorists couldn't be trusted with self-government of traffic.

It was found that some storekeepers, clerks and office employes who had previously parked outside of restricted zones, immediately started all-day parking on Main street, others made their own decisions as to parallel or angle parking, and double parking became common.

Strange, when you think of it, how many of the "best people" require policing.

Favor Wagner Act Revision.

MORE hope of quick revision of the Wagner Labor Act comes as a result of the recent strike of hotel employes in Washington, D. C., which was effective in bringing the subject forcefully to the attention of lawmakers and other government officials.

While the right to strike has long been regarded as a legitimate weapon of organized labor in attempting to enforce demands on employers, there has been an assumption that strikes should be resorted to only after mediation efforts have failed and that the public should be inconvenienced as little as possible thereby.

Discord in the ranks of organized labor, with apparent lack of responsible leadership and counsel, has been effective, during the past several years, in developing an intolerable situation which has seriously retarded industrial recovery.

Inequitable provisions of the Wagner Labor Act have contributed to considerable extent in bringing about badly adjusted labor relations and the misunderstandings that have resulted therefrom.

If this law can be revised in a way that will make its application fair to all parties concerned, it should be done as quickly as possible.

When Bright Pupils Grow Up.

THERE is a quite common impression that children who start out as prodigies don't amount to much in later life. A study made in California indicates that this is a mistaken notion. Boys and girls who are bright in school usually continue so and hold their advantage over the mediocre.

Dr. Lewis M. Terman, psychologist in Leland Stanford university, followed up the careers of most of a group of 1,400 children picked in 1922 as the brightest among 250,000 California youngsters. A recent check-up shows that they are succeeding in far greater proportion than their less brilliant school friends.

Half of the boys are now in the professions and one-fourth in semi-professional work or business. The remaining fourth cover a good deal of occupational territory. They are artists, radio announcers, writers, jazz-band players, salesmen, movie technicians, stamp dealers, and so on, with one policeman and a fox farmer. And here is, to many people perhaps, the most telling point in the whole report: Not one of these gifted youngsters has been on relief rolls.

Whiteman Argues for 'Swing.'

WHEN Paul Whiteman, "Jazz King" ever since there has been any jazz, starts philosophizing about swing music, he has an audience. Many middle-aged people, refusing to be converted to this current aberration, consider it a perversion unworthy to be called music. Many declare, too, that if not in itself evidence of insanity, it tends to make its practitioners insane. This latter view refers especially to the "jitterbug" type.

Mr. Whiteman, not making a direct reply to these allegations, gently observes that there must be something in the new musical mode because young children, who learn rather easily to play musical classics, find swing difficult. Such music requires greater maturity. And that is because it demands imagination and inventive or creative ability.

However ingenious and original the swing creation may be, there remains the question whether it's worth creating. Also the harm it may be doing to minds and nerves that need normal, healthful rhythm rather than distraction and excitement.

Soldiers for What?

"Physical strength of the 100,000,000 Germans of the future shall be such as to withstand all fatigues and hardships. Young men will stream in double and three-fold number into barracks. We intend to use every one of them."

Use them for what? The outer world would like to know the answer to that question. Germans, as the world knows very well, make excellent soldiers. There is little question about them, but much question about their leadership and its aim.

Memory experts are having difficulty in organizing classes just now—more people seem interested in finding a way to forget.

Approaching his third marriage, Clark Gable is still far from the record—but he's quite a young man yet.

It's impossible to think crooked and go straight.

Keeping Step

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Few things in Washington are so generally misunderstood as some of the big stag dinners which occur at regular intervals—four of them annually, and one twice a year.

For instance the annual "wallow" of the Military Order of the Carabao. The average citizen would never have heard about these "wallows" if it had not been for William Jennings Bryan. When the Commoner was secretary of state he discovered that a line in one of the songs which the Carabao were to sing at their dinner read: "Civilize them with a Krag," meaning of course the rifle which was regular army equipment during the Philippine insurrection.

This gave the country the notion, one it still entertains when it thinks about the Carabao at all, that the members are a bunch of fire-eaters who would like to apply Japanese conquest methods in the islands. Actually the only thing on which the organization seems to be agreed is that the islands its members fought to hold should be retained indefinitely by the United States. That is not an unnatural attitude for men who have passed the prime of life, and are looking backward at the days of their youth and effort. Naturally they do not want that big experience in their lives to count for nothing, and that is the way they would feel if the United States should, as they put it, "scuttle" in the Philippines.

Actually, however, General Aguinaldo has been an honored guest at these "wallows," and so have other insurrecto leaders. More of the blue and grey spirit of Civil war reunions pervades the wallows than any thought of bitterness.

For the last twenty years not a word has been said or sung at a Carabao wallow that would not have been approved at the White House, the state department, or the lobbies of the Philippine congress. The dinners have been more like college class reunions than anything else.

THE White House Correspondents' dinners have become glorified vaudeville shows, with the added eclat for visitors that the president of the United States and most of the cabinet are always present. Actually ninety-eight per cent of the entertainment is provided by professionals, usually provided by the two big broadcasting companies on alternate years. The president merely acknowledges the friendly greeting. This year this enjoyable and relaxing event had to be cancelled because of the hotel strike, affecting all the hotels with dining rooms large enough to accommodate the number scheduled.

The National Press Club dinners are but a slight modification of the White House correspondents', save that the dinners are smaller, being limited by the fact that it is held in the Press club auditorium. There is usually a little more amateur talent, but the real load of providing amusement rests on professionals.

ALFALFA dinners were organized by a lot of fun lovers, few of whom can tell hay from straw. The chief mystery of the club goes back to a speech made by W. M. Jardine, when he was secretary of agriculture. For forty odd minutes Jardine read a long, serious treatise on Alfalfa. What the club members do not know to this day is whether Jardine was having fun at the club's expense, or just didn't know any better.

In recent years the orators in the club have been spoiling the dinners, cramping the style of the excellent professional talent which Gene Buck, now president of the club, has been providing.

GRIDIRON dinners are utterly different in that there is no professional talent whatever except the musicians. The skits are performed by amateurs and are written by newspaper men who are members. The whole punch of a Gridiron dinner is to see the president and high officials kidded to their faces, this being one of the few countries where this would be possible.

Drys Again Gaining In Congress

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota and Representative U. S. Guyer of Kansas have a bill apiece in Congress seeking to re-prohibitionize the District of Columbia. This is the same old camel trying again to get his snoot under the tent flap. The camel won't succeed this time, but he's a persistent animal. The D. C. is a small area, nevertheless it's the main entrance to the national big top. With the critter's nose intrenched in Washington, the whole critter is in a fair way to shoulder himself, hump and all, into the whole country. There were plenty of dry states even then—more than at present. However, the dry idea was only local—state-wide, or less so—until the District was offered as a good or awful example (depending on how one looks at the matter) of federal proportions.

No individual wet state previously had considered itself bound to pay any attention to the dry rule in Kansas, for instance. The Sunflower commonwealth, in fact, was regarded as a freak area, not to be taken too seriously.

But the District of Columbia, traditionally, has been looked at as the entire republic's proving ground for all sorts of experiments in legislation, regulation and taxation. This has made it a weird place to live in. Nevertheless, with no voice of their own in their domestic affairs, Washingtonians have had to submit to it. They do yet.

Washingtonian Prohibition.

Washingtonian prohibition having been decreed, prohibitionists immediately asserted that it was working perfectly. It wasn't true; I know, having lived under it. But I've no doubt that prohibitionists believed it, not wanting a drink anyway.

Yet the American majority, being then prohibitionistic, chose to gulp the whole story down bodily—and we got wholesale prohibition mainly on the strength of Washington's trial of it.

As we know, a literal saturnalia of racketeering followed.

Joseph B. Keenan, under President Roosevelt, was appointed assistant attorney general, in the justice department, especially to fight the racketeers. Assuredly he did fight them, and probably understands them better than any prosecutor living.

I asked him then (he's recently retired), what caused it all?—prohibition? — the depression — or what?

"Prohibition," he answered unqualifiedly. "It just shows what a bad law will do." Nevertheless he fought liquor racketeering like a wildcat. Just now, as previously remarked, he's out as a public official.

Dry Regime's Aftermath.

Perhaps we're recovering.

But possibly, as indicated by Senator Frazier's and Representative Guyer's activities we're due for another move in the old direction.

I wouldn't think there was much prospect of their move's success on a federal scale. Still, one might have said the same thing when the drys put across their initial program, as per the 18th amendment. The Sheppards and surviving Volstead's and others won't do it speedily, but they're diggers.

The Distilled Spirits Institute is worried anyhow.

It issues bushels of publicity to prove (so it says) how prohibition fizzled.

It's a funny thing that Dr. J. M. Doran is the foremost of the Distilled Spirits Institute's spokesmen. Because, Dr. Doran was the chief dry enforcement officer in the prohibition era.

At this juncture, he's the chief anti-prohibitionist.

And Gene Tunney!—ex-heavyweight scrapper! He's a Congressional witness on the liquor subject. What, in heaven's name, does he know about it?

Health Advice

Many Remedies for Athlete's Foot.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS A generally recognized principle of treatment that when there are ten or 15 strongly-recommended treatments of a disease, that is almost positive proof that none of them is really any good.

There is probably no ill to which flesh is heir which has had so many remedies suggested for it as the condition known as athlete's foot. This itchy, blistery eruption, which occurs upon the feet of those both with and without physical prowess, is sometimes very easy to get rid of and sometimes very resistant to treatment. When one of your friends has cured himself in a day or two, he naturally feels that the treatment he has used will work for anyone, any time, and goes around touting it to all others afflicted. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't.

List Is Long.

Thus, the list of remedies used on this pesky thing is long; it includes iodine, mercurochrome, salicylic acid, gasoline, ammoniated mercury, formaldehyde, x-rays and other rays, and a few dozen other things.

The fact seems to be that the fungus which causes it has many varieties, and what kills one variety does not do anything to the other. For that reason a comprehensive program, such as is issued by Dr. J. A. Meledy, of the Veterans Administration at Boston, is worth repeating.

The first point to be stressed is absolute cleanliness. The feet should be entirely free from perspiration and extremely clean at all times. Soap and water should never be used, however; instead, warm olive oil is used to clean the feet. The patient should own ten pairs of cheap white, cotton socks and three pairs of shoes so that one pair can be worn for one day only.

The patient's feet are soaked for 20 minutes in a solution containing two tablespoons of sodium hypo-sulphite in two quarts of water.

Exposed to Rays.

The feet are then thoroughly dried and exposed to the actinic rays for a period of five to seven minutes at a distance of about 18 inches. While the feet are thus exposed, the toes are separated so that the rays can penetrate thoroughly into the spaces between and under them. After exposure to the actinic rays, the feet are thoroughly dusted with Epto powder and the patient instructed to put on clean socks.

Epto powder is a carefully-compounded semi-anhydrous dusting powder of desiccated sodium thiosulphate, enhanced by the synergistic action of thymol and an acceptable base of starch and boracic acid, with oil of absinthium as a deodorant.

Timely Editorial

Trailer Status Defined.

The moot question, "When is a trailer not a trailer?" gets the answer, "When it is not being trailed," in a decision of a federal court in Texas. Federal Judge R. J. McMillan decided recently in San Antonio that a trailer detached from an automobile has the status of a building.

Trailers used as dwellings have brought to attention a number of problems. Most serious among these are the welfare of children in trailer-housed families, and the obligations of heads of such families to pay something for the public advantages they enjoy.

It is apparent that families encamped for any considerable time in one place should bear a just share of the costs of schools, police and fire protection and other public services. Numerous court rulings have interpreted special relationships such families bear to the community. Te San Antonio case rules that a house on wheels receives the responsibility of a home in a community when its motive power is detached from it. —Detroit News.

As Others See It

Just an Error.

In Brooklyn a WPA wrecking crew tore down the wrong three-family flat. It is pretty embarrassing, but let us remember the brave words of our Leader, "If we're wrong, we'll try something else."—Detroit News.

Funny Gus Gets Mention.

Representative Gus Kasch has a resolution in the Ohio legislature inviting Canada to withdraw from the British Empire. It is rather too much to expect in view of the fact that Canada is so little acquainted with Representative Kasch.—Toronto Globe and Mail.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Rutgers College, New Brunswick, New Jersey, was chartered on March 20, 1770. It originally was called Queens College but changed its name in 1825, when it was renamed in honor of Henry Rutgers, whose gift to the college enabled it to reopen.

A Farmer's Diary

A Litter of Pigs.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

HE'S down at the barn somewhere," the neighbor's wife told me, so I walked that way. The big barn doors were open, and I went in. Nobody was about, but I noticed that the mows on either side were still a little more than half full of roughage. He must have almost two thirds of his feed still unused.

It was a bank barn, and I heard the munching of the stock below. I followed the sound. Thirty-six lively shoats were eating corn, in a wide enclosure. The cows and calves were busily sifting out the choicest bits of hay from their well-filled mangers. On the southern side, seven draft horses vigorously bit corn from the cob, their noses moving about their small feeding troughs. Some white chickens moved cautiously about the hog enclosure, picking up stray grains of corn.

My neighbor came up from the direction of a small building south of the barn.

"You have plenty of feed left, don't you?" I greeted him.

"Yes—but it won't spoil and another year I'll have more hogs, and maybe more cattle. Come here and I'll show you something."

I followed him to a spacious stall in the old hog house. There, nestled in the straw beside the mother were nine little red-spotted pigs, shivering and climbing over one another in a heap. As we looked, the mother half raised up, blew, and grunted her disgust at us.

Why did we have to come at a time like this to disturb her and her growing family, she seemed to say, in no uncertain hoggish language.

"Even a hog prefers privacy at times," I told my neighbor.

"They're mighty fine pigs—even now, I think they'll bid fair to make a ton litter." And in his smile, I seemed to see the vision of ten or more clean fat hogs, walking contentedly about the autumn meadow.

Listen, World!

You Can't Cash In on Grandpaw's Gumption.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SINCE no one else would spring a War, we started a dandy for ourselves the other day by asking five million young people (12-30 years) the following question:

"COULD YOUNG AMERICA MAKE GOOD IN THE WILDERNESS IF IT HAD TO START FROM SCRATCH, AT ITS PIONEERS DID?"

Hot-diggety, how those answers came crashing in! At least 95 per cent were in the affirmative, which we'd expect. But we hadn't expected the reason which most of them gave. Instead of boasting of their own prowess, nearly all of them gave Grampaw the credit! Said young wife Betty Barnes of Sunnyside, Wash.

Could we take it? Of course we could! Yes, I admit we're largely a spoiled, coddled, luxury-loving generation and we may seem to be sissies on the surface. But don't worry—we'd make good in a pinch. OUR FATHERS DIDN'T STRIVE OR SUFFER IN VAIN; THE SPIRIT THEY ESTABLISHED IN US, THE IDEALS THEY HELD BEFORE US HAVE REMAINED UNCHANGED THROUGH THE CENTURIES!"

Marianna Rossi of Queens Village, Long Island, N. Y., also believed the Old Folks would see Young America through—

"The early-settlers were young and ambitious and willing to apply themselves and face any hardships. Youth has always transmitted the virtues of its predecessors. We, today, are our rugged fathers in a different dress, but WITH THE SAME SPIRIT WHICH MADE THEM INDOMITABLE."

So they ran, thousands of them, in one happy chorus of confidence. Fine, serious, well-written letters . . . and 9 out of 10 readers will agree with the argument that Young America can't be licked because "THE GOOD OLD AMERICAN FIGHTING SPIRIT" WOULD SEE THEM THROUGH."

But it wouldn't. I, too, would gladly bet my last nickel on Young America's making good in any jam; but it wouldn't be because George Washington starved at Valley Forge and Abe Lincoln splits logs and studied by a tallow.

FOR CHARACTER CAN'T BE TRANSMITTED FROM ONE GENERATION TO ANOTHER.

DECENCY IS A ONE-MAN JOB.

YOU CAN'T CASH IN ON GRAMPAW'S COURAGE AND HONESTY, GRAMMAW'S PATIENCE, INDUSTRY AND COMMON SENSE.

IF YOU NEED A BACKBONE YOU'LL HAVE TO MAKE IT FOR YOURSELF.

This notion that we Americans are the shrewdest and spunkiest nation on earth simply because our fighting fathers hung up a spectacular record in these virtues is The Great American Fallacy. Insofar as we individually work to profit by their glorious examples, we benefit from them. Otherwise, their virtues are no more useful to us than their cast-off store teeth.

Another oddity in this contest was Young America's estimate of pioneer "hardships." All expected to face hunger, thirst, lack of tools, clothes, mechanical conveniences. But not one writer mentioned the two conditions which were the hardest tests of pioneer courage and which would constitute an infinitely tougher test to the average American today: namely, MONOTONY and LONELINESS.

It wasn't the bears they faced or the meals they missed which gave Grampaw and Gramma the worst pain in the neck. It was the everlasting solitude and sameness of life. If such conditions were hard for them, who knew so few amusement at the best, what would they be to the average Machine Age citizen with his nightly Bright Light Parade or Bridge Game?

How long do YOU think you could stand living in a virgin wilderness . . . sans all "modern conveniences" . . . with visitors "dropping in" only every two or three months . . . with no companionship save that of mate and babies?

YES, IT'S A SERIOUS QUESTION. LET'S HEAR YOUR ANSWERS—WE'D LIKE TO PRINT THEM!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Americans paid $90,000,000 last year for the privilege of listening to dance bands. That's big business. Ninety million dollars is big business anywhere. The public is high on dance bands just now.

At least 98 per cent of this $90,000,000 was negotiated by four corporations — Music Corporation of America, Consolidated Radio Artists, Rockwell-O'Keefe, and the William Morris agency.

These four companies control every important orchestra in the United States. The Music Corporation of America is the oldest and the largest. It has been in existence nearly 17 years. Until recently it had what amounted to a monopoly on the management of America's dance bands.

The second largest is the Consolidated Radio Artists, now three years old, which this year will handle a $5,000,000 slice of the business. The O'Keefe office is third in size, with some notable bands on its list, and the William Morris agency (its band department is only four months old) the fourth.

IT IS these organizations which scout small bands, groom them, bring them along till they are ready for the big time, place them into the proper niche and permit them to blossom—if they have the stuff—into "Name" bands — the Kay Kysers, the Paul Whitemans, the Guy Lombardos.

This is an intricate and a painstaking process, and, as Charles Green, who is president of Consolidated Radio Artists, describes it, an interesting one. Take the case of Blue Barron. Consolidated found him in Cleveland. His top price at that time was $400 a week. They liked the way he worked. They took him under management, brought him to New York, and, at union scale, put him into a Manhattan hotel, then fed him through the proper network channels to the public. Nine months later he was out on the road, a "Name" band, and from nothing his weekly guarantee runs into the thousands.

There isn't much hope for any orchestra unless it's kept before the public via the air. These four corporations have the proper connections to keep you on the air. Artie Shaw jumped in four months from coffee money to $8,500 a week. He wouldn't have reached this if he had been on his own. And yet, with all this help, he had to be good to catch on. There are some 40 orchestras on the networks each night, and some 200 each week. Of these only eight won eminence last year —Barron, Shaw, Larry Clinton, Sammy Kaye—to name half.

NONE of these could have gotten anywhere without the network facilities provided by their respective agents. These networks provide a minimum of two million hearers nightly. With two million people listening to you it doesn't take long for some sort of reaction to get back to the sponsors. Green says Consolidated paid NBC something like $50,000 last year for these network privileges, "the life blood of bands." From his offices in Rockefeller Center he directs the activities of 180 orchestras. Paul Whiteman is his biggest "name," and will be for 20 years, because Whiteman has a 20-year contract.

Their offices are spread chain fashion across the continent—New York, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Their scouts comb the hinterlands for promising material. If they like you they nurse you along and give you every advantage until you click or demonstrate that you can't produce. It's the only way open to an orchestra that wants to get anywhere.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

A tap at the door of their room in the tourist home awakened Jim and Lona the morning after their wedding night. Sitting up in bed Lona saw the sun streaming through the windows that had been eerie with moonlight in last night's darkness.

"Yes?" she called out, laughing at Jim's tousled head and sleepy eyes.

"The morning paper . . . thought you'd like to see it," came in the friendly voice of the woman of the house.

"Thank you," Lona murmured, and turned to the clock. Imagine waking people up to give them the morning paper. Then her eyes widened as she saw the time. Ten o'clock! She laughed again, and punched Jim to make him wake.

"Sleepyhead!" she taunted. "Why didn't you tell me it was ten o'clock? Come on, we've got to get back to town and go house hunting."

Slipping out of bed she caught up her negligee and went barefoot to the door, tossing back her brown curls like a child. The paper was propped against the door, and she brought it inside expectantly. Perhaps in the "For Rent" ads she might find her future address.

Sitting on the bed where Jim still stretched and yawned, she opened the folded sheet, and then a little surprise exclamation forced itself through her lips. Sprawled across the front page was a picture of herself and Jim!

"Why, how on earth—" she began, and then she saw it had been taken in the same court house corridor where Jim had punched the reporter yesterday and smashed his camera. Jim frowning in the picture, and she looked frightened. She recalled the click she had heard as the second reporter opened the door for them. He, too, must have had a camera, a hidden one.

"Lona Ackerman, the girl who last week buried her convict father after being a principal in the sensational break and kidnaping at the state penitentiary, applied for a marriage license at the license bureau late yesterday. The above picture of the couple was snapped just after the groom-to-be, who gave his name as James Claridge, 29, had knocked down Reporter Ellis Butler of the Times, and smashed his camera, when Butler attempted to snap a similar picture. Claridge is a structural iron worker on the new Terminal building. Wedding plans of the couple were kept secret."

It was a deliberately irritating bit of publicity. As if the reporter writing it had tried to get even for Jim's outburst by including as many notorious details as possible. But, somehow, in her new status as Jim's wife, Lona failed to get more than slightly angry over it. Perhaps, she thought, as she read the familiar phrases that a week ago would have caused her to flinch in shame, she was getting used to it. Or was it that, now she had Jim to protect her, things didn't seem so terrible as when she had been alone?

"Look, Jim!" she said, and held out the page to him. "They got us after all."

"Got us? What do you mean?"

He stopped short at sight of the picture staring out at him, and his face went a sickly white. His fists were clenched as he took it in, and into his eyes there flashed for an instant a look that Lona knew instinctively as fear. Bewildered, she watched him in silence.

"That woman downstairs! Do you think she's seen this?" he demanded, almost roughly, after a moment's silence.

"I—I don't know. I—suppose so—"

"They mustn't recognize us. We'd better get packed and get out of here." He was almost furtive.

"But I—somehow I don't seem to care about the publicity any more. I don't care if I am recognized. It doesn't seem to make so much difference—now." She gave him a shy glance full of meaning, but his mind seemed to be far away.

"Jim!" she burst out, then, "what's the matter? You look so strange—"

"Oh, it's just that it makes me so damned mad!" He made an obvious effort to return to normal. She could see him relaxing, forcing his whimsical half smile. "They've no right to take pictures of us! I'd like to get my hands on that reporter's neck, that's all. Don't you realize what this means, girl? We're going to have to travel now instead of going back to the city—"

"Travel! Why, what do you mean, Jim?

"I didn't tell you, but my job back there on the Terminal building is finished. I didn't want to upset you. I was thinking of going back and getting into some other game because I thought you sort of liked the town and wanted to live there. But now . . . there's a new bridge going up out near Detroit. Guess we'd better make tracks for there."

"Jim, do you mean you're—out of a job? And we're not going back to the city?" She was bewildered.

"That's about it, girl. After that picture it wouldn't be very pleasant for you to be—hunting a house, as you say. Every landlady in the city would turn up her nose. I couldn't let you go back and—face that again. You must know that. We'll catch a train and go places!"

"A train. But the car, Jim! Surely you're going to take that back to the city. It's only hired . . . "

"There's a garage man I know bact at ——" He paused and she had the impression he was searching his memory for some unfamiliar name. "Back at Lewistown. We came through Lewistown yesterday, didn't we? About an hour's drive back, if I remember correctly. We'll go back that far and drop off the car. There's a through bus line makes this highway, I think, and we can take it to the nearest train stop. You're going places, girl. West! . . Think of it!"

He reached for her, suddenly, and pulled her into his arms. His fear and worry seemed to have vanished. His good humor was restored.

"But I — I don't quite understand, Jim. To—pick up and—and change plans like this . . " She still hesitated.

"I told you I was a rolling stone, didn't I? You're going to get used to quick changes, girl. Besides, why should you care? One town's as good as another, isn't it? As long as we're together?"

She strained against him, then. "As long as we're together, Jim," she repeated solemnly. "I don't think I could bear it if we ever had to separate. Don't ever leave me!" she pleaded. "No matter wat happens!"

"Girl!" he said, and his eyes were bright as if with tears, as his seeking lips found hers. "Oh, girl."

It was hard to realize that they were not going back to the city. As they drove back to Lewistown and Jim left their rented car in t he care of a greasy garage mechanic, Lona caught herself speculating. It seemed so much like flight.

Loyally she kept at bay the doubts that crept into her mind as she sat beside Jim through the ride on the speeding bus that took them within thirty miles of the state capital where only a week ago she had been in such trouble. How things had changed since then!

They would be obliged to spend the night on the train, Jim told her, after a consultation with the agent of the branch station where they finally found themselves late that afternoon. Morning would bring them into Brighton, the place for which they were heading.

"But how can you be sure you'll find work there, Jim?" she asked him, her voice puzzled.

He shrugged. "There's always room for one more good iron worker on a bridge job," he told her. "That's one thing you never need worry about, girl. There'll always be work for me somewhere . . . I've made many a change as suddenly as this."

His eyes pleaded for understanding and, under their spell, the thing seemed as simple as he put it.

"You've a family to support now, Jim," she chided him, and they both laughed. It was good to be light-hearted, Lona thought. To be with someone with whom you belonged. To have that feeling of complete companionship.

ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOLS SLIPS

Decrease in February Slight Though Despite Wave of Colds, Report Shows.

Despite a near-epidemic of colds and grippe, attendance at Mansfield public schools in February dropped only seven-tenths of a per cent from the January figures, reports to Supt. W. L. Miller showed today.

There was a marked decline, however, in the number of pupils who were neither absent nor tardy, the February total dropping to 2,974 from 3,323 in January.

Average attendance for the schools in February was 92.3 per cent while the average for the preceding month was 93 per cent.

With 97.5 per cent, the Bushnell school topped the February attendance list. The West Fifth street school was second with 96 1 per cent and the Woodland school third with 95 1 per cent.

Tardiness increased in February while truancy cases showed a decline. There were 561 cases of tardiness and 35 cases of truancy last month as compared with 688 and 21 cases in January.

Total enrollment in February was 6,359 pupils with Senior high heading the list with 1,386.

Lower rates on LOANS over $100

No co-signers or endorsers
No embarrassment or delay

● When you borrow, you should know these facts about small loan rates. The Small Loan Law of this state permits a certain maximum rate to be charged for a loan. On all loans of more than $100 Household Finance does not charge the full rate!

Check these savings

Suppose you need $140. At the lawful maximum rate the cost of your loan for 30 days is $4.20. At Household's lower rates the charge is $3.80—a saving of 40c. On a loan of $200 the cost for 30 days at the lawful maximum rate is $6.00. At Household's rates the charge is $5.00—a saving of $1.00. (Thirty day loans are used as examples for convenience. Loans for longer terms naturally cost less per month.)

You may apply to Household Finance for a loan of $20 to $300. You need no stocks, bonds or other bankable security. No one need sign with you (married couples sign together). You get your loan without delay and without embarrassment to you.

Don't Get a Loan until you read these features of the Household Finance Loan Plan

1. Anyone may apply to Household Finance for a loan of $20 to $300 on furniture, car or note.
2. Small monthly payments. Example: $9.09 first month, decreasing each month to $8.19 last month, repays a $160 loan in 20 months, including charges, provided principal is repaid as agreed.
3. You do not need co-makers or endorsers. No salary or wage assignment required.
4. Household Finance's monthly charge is less than the lawful maximum on all loans above $100.
5. Quick action. No waiting.
6. Loans may be repaid ahead of schedule to reduce the cost. Charge is made on unpaid balance only.
7. No credit inquiries made of friends or relatives. Private consultation rooms.

Any mechanic will tell you that a few loose nuts can cause a lot of trouble.

Quite unfortunately, it seems unlikely that Hitler will get in the path of California's moving mountain.

Experiment In Self-Government.

FOSTORIA indulged in an interesting experiment last week. Council abolished all parking regulations and placed motorists "on their honor" to avoid over-long use of parking spaces, to refrain from double parking and to conform to reasonable rules of courtesy.

The idea was to give the honor system a 60-day tryout, but after four days of confusion it was decided that the plan wouldn't work—that Fostoria motorists couldn't be trusted with self-government of traffic.

It was found that some storekeepers, clerks and office employes who had previously parked outside of restricted zones, immediately started all-day parking on Main street, others made their own decisions as to parallel or angle parking, and double parking became common.

Strange, when you think of it, how many of the "best people" require policing.

Favor Wagner Act Revision.

MORE hope of quick revision of the Wagner Labor Act comes as a result of the recent strike of hotel employes in Washington, D. C., which was effective in bringing the subject forcefully to the attention of lawmakers and other government officials.

While the right to strike has long been regarded as a legitimate weapon of organized labor in attempting to enforce demands on employers, there has been an assumption that strikes should be resorted to only after mediation efforts have failed and that the public should be inconvenienced as little as possible thereby.

Discord in the ranks of organized labor, with apparent lack of responsible leadership and counsel, has been effective, during the past several years, in developing an intolerable situation which has seriously retarded industrial recovery.

Inequitable provisions of the Wagner Labor Act have contributed to considerable extent in bringing about badly adjusted labor relations and the misunderstandings that have resulted therefrom.

If this law can be revised in a way that will make its application fair to all parties concerned, it should be done as quickly as possible.

When Bright Pupils Grow Up.

THERE is a quite common impression that children who start out as prodigies don't amount to much in later life. A study made in California indicates that this is a mistaken notion. Boys and girls who are bright in school usually continue so and hold their advantage over the mediocre.

Dr. Lewis M. Terman, psychologist in Leland Stanford university, followed up the careers of most of a group of 1,400 children picked in 1922 as the brightest among 250,000 California youngsters. A recent check-up shows that they are succeeding in far greater proportion than their less brilliant school friends.

Half of the boys are now in the professions and one-fourth in semi-professional work or business. The remaining fourth cover a good deal of occupational territory. They are artists, radio announcers, writers, jazz-band players, salesmen, movie technicians, stamp dealers, and so on, with one policeman and a fox farmer. And here is, to many people perhaps, the most telling point in the whole report: Not one of these gifted youngsters has been on relief rolls.

Whiteman Argues for 'Swing.'

WHEN Paul Whiteman, "Jazz King" ever since there has been any jazz, starts philosophizing about swing music, he has an audience. Many middle-aged people, refusing to be converted to this current aberration, consider it a perversion unworthy to be called music. Many declare, too, that if not in itself evidence of insanity, it tends to make its practitioners insane. This latter view refers especially to the "jitterbug" type.

Mr. Whiteman, not making a direct reply to these allegations, gently observes that there must be something in the new musical mode because young children, who learn rather easily to play musical classics, find swing difficult. Such music requires greater maturity. And that is because it demands imagination and inventive or creative ability.

However ingenious and original the swing creation may be, there remains the question whether it's worth creating. Also the harm it may be doing to minds and nerves that need normal, healthful rhythm rather than distraction and excitement.

Soldiers for What?

"Physical strength of the 100,000,000 Germans of the future shall be such as to withstand all fatigues and hardships. Young men will stream in double and three-fold number into barracks. We intend to use every one of them."

Use them for what? The outer world would like to know the answer to that question. Germans, as the world knows very well, make excellent soldiers. There is little question about them, but much question about their leadership and its aim.

Memory experts are having difficulty in organizing classes just now—more people seem interested in finding a way to forget.

Approaching his third marriage, Clark Gable is still far from the record—but he's quite a young man yet.

It's impossible to think crooked and go straight.

Keeping Step

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Few things in Washington are so generally misunderstood as some of the big stag dinners which occur at regular intervals—four of them annually, and one twice a year.

For instance the annual "wallow" of the Military Order of the Carabao. The average citizen would never have heard about these "wallows" if it had not been for William Jennings Bryan. When the Commoner was secretary of state he discovered that a line in one of the songs which the Carabao were to sing at their dinner read: "Civilize them with a Krag," meaning of course the rifle which was regular army equipment during the Philippine insurrection.

This gave the country the notion, one it still entertains when it thinks about the Carabao at all, that the members are a bunch of fire-eaters who would like to apply Japanese conquest methods in the islands. Actually the only thing on which the organization seems to be agreed is that the islands its members fought to hold should be retained indefinitely by the United States. That is not an unnatural attitude for men who have passed the prime of life, and are looking backward at the days of their youth and effort. Naturally they do not want that big experience in their lives to count for nothing, and that is the way they would feel if the United States should, as they put it, "scuttle" in the Philippines.

Actually, however, General Aguinaldo has been an honored guest at these "wallows," and so have other insurrecto leaders. More of the blue and grey spirit of Civil war reunions pervades the wallows than any thought of bitterness.

For the last twenty years not a word has been said or sung at a Carabao wallow that would not have been approved at the White House, the state department, or the lobbies of the Philippine congress. The dinners have been more like college class reunions than anything else.

THE White House Correspondents' dinners have become glorified vaudeville shows, with the added eclat for visitors that the president of the United States and most of the cabinet are always present. Actually ninety-eight per cent of the entertainment is provided by professionals, usually provided by the two big broadcasting companies on alternate years. The president merely acknowledges the friendly greeting. This year this enjoyable and relaxing event had to be cancelled because of the hotel strike, affecting all the hotels with dining rooms large enough to accommodate the number scheduled.

The National Press Club dinners are but a slight modification of the White House correspondents', save that the dinners are smaller, being limited by the fact that it is held in the Press club auditorium. There is usually a little more amateur talent, but the real load of providing amusement rests on professionals.

ALFALFA dinners were organized by a lot of fun lovers, few of whom can tell hay from straw. The chief mystery of the club goes back to a speech made by W. M. Jardine, when he was secretary of agriculture. For forty odd minutes Jardine read a long, serious treatise on Alfalfa. What the club members do not know to this day is whether Jardine was having fun at the club's expense, or just didn't know any better.

In recent years the orators in the club have been spoiling the dinners, cramping the style of the excellent professional talent which Gene Buck, now president of the club, has been providing.

GRIDIRON dinners are utterly different in that there is no professional talent whatever except the musicians. The skits are performed by amateurs and are written by newspaper men who are members. The whole punch of a Gridiron dinner is to see the president and high officials kidded to their faces, this being one of the few countries where this would be possible.

Drys Again Gaining In Congress

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota and Representative U. S. Guyer of Kansas have a bill apiece in Congress seeking to re-prohibitionize the District of Columbia. This is the same old camel trying again to get his snoot under the tent flap. The camel won't succeed this time, but he's a persistent animal. The D. C. is a small area, nevertheless it's the main entrance to the national big top. With the critter's nose intrenched in Washington, the whole critter is in a fair way to shoulder himself, hump and all, into the whole country. There were plenty of dry states even then—more than at present. However, the dry idea was only local—state-wide, or less so—until the District was offered as a good or awful example (depending on how one looks at the matter) of federal proportions.

No individual wet state previously had considered itself bound to pay any attention to the dry rule in Kansas, for instance. The Sunflower commonwealth, in fact, was regarded as a freak area, not to be taken too seriously.

But the District of Columbia, traditionally, has been looked at as the entire republic's proving ground for all sorts of experiments in legislation, regulation and taxation. This has made it a weird place to live in. Nevertheless, with no voice of their own in their domestic affairs, Washingtonians have had to submit to it. They do yet.

Washingtonian Prohibition.

Washingtonian prohibition having been decreed, prohibitionists immediately asserted that it was working perfectly. It wasn't true; I know, having lived under it. But I've no doubt that prohibitionists believed it, not wanting a drink anyway.

Yet the American majority, being then prohibitionistic, chose to gulp the whole story down bodily—and we got wholesale prohibition mainly on the strength of Washington's trial of it.

As we know, a literal saturnalia of racketeering followed.

Joseph B. Keenan, under President Roosevelt, was appointed assistant attorney general, in the justice department, especially to fight the racketeers. Assuredly he did fight them, and probably understands them better than any prosecutor living.

I asked him then (he's recently retired), what caused it all?—prohibition? — the depression — or what?

"Prohibition," he answered unqualifiedly. "It just shows what a bad law will do." Nevertheless he fought liquor racketeering like a wildcat. Just now, as previously remarked, he's out as a public official.

Dry Regime's Aftermath.

Perhaps we're recovering.

But possibly, as indicated by Senator Frazier's and Representative Guyer's activities we're due for another move in the old direction.

I wouldn't think there was much prospect of their move's success on a federal scale. Still, one might have said the same thing when the drys put across their initial program, as per the 18th amendment. The Sheppards and surviving Volstead's and others won't do it speedily, but they're diggers.

The Distilled Spirits Institute is worried anyhow.

It issues bushels of publicity to prove (so it says) how prohibition fizzled.

It's a funny thing that Dr. J. M. Doran is the foremost of the Distilled Spirits Institute's spokesmen. Because, Dr. Doran was the chief dry enforcement officer in the prohibition era.

At this juncture, he's the chief anti-prohibitionist.

And Gene Tunney!—ex-heavyweight scrapper! He's a Congressional witness on the liquor subject. What, in heaven's name, does he know about it?

Health Advice

Many Remedies for Athlete's Foot.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT IS A generally recognized principle of treatment that when there are ten or 15 strongly-recommended treatments of a disease, that is almost positive proof that none of them is really any good.

There is probably no ill to which flesh is heir which has had so many remedies suggested for it as the condition known as athlete's foot. This itchy, blistery eruption, which occurs upon the feet of those both with and without physical prowess, is sometimes very easy to get rid of and sometimes very resistant to treatment. When one of your friends has cured himself in a day or two, he naturally feels that the treatment he has used will work for anyone, any time, and goes around touting it to all others afflicted. Sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't.

List Is Long.

Thus, the list of remedies used on this pesky thing is long; it includes iodine, mercurochrome, salicylic acid, gasoline, ammoniated mercury, formaldehyde, x-rays and other rays, and a few dozen other things.

The fact seems to be that the fungus which causes it has many varieties, and what kills one variety does not do anything to the other. For that reason a comprehensive program, such as is issued by Dr. J. A. Meledy, of the Veterans Administration at Boston, is worth repeating.

The first point to be stressed is absolute cleanliness. The feet should be entirely free from perspiration and extremely clean at all times. Soap and water should never be used, however; instead, warm olive oil is used to clean the feet. The patient should own ten pairs of cheap white, cotton socks and three pairs of shoes so that one pair can be worn for one day only.

The patient's feet are soaked for 20 minutes in a solution containing two tablespoons of sodium hypo-sulphite in two quarts of water.

Exposed to Rays.

The feet are then thoroughly dried and exposed to the actinic rays for a period of five to seven minutes at a distance of about 18 inches. While the feet are thus exposed, the toes are separated so that the rays can penetrate thoroughly into the spaces between and under them. After exposure to the actinic rays, the feet are thoroughly dusted with Epto powder and the patient instructed to put on clean socks.

Epto powder is a carefully-compounded semi-anhydrous dusting powder of desiccated sodium thiosulphate, enhanced by the synergistic action of thymol and an acceptable base of starch and boracic acid, with oil of absinthium as a deodorant.

A Farmer's Diary

A Litter of Pigs.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

HE'S down at the barn somewhere," the neighbor's wife told me, so I walked that way. The big barn doors were open, and I went in. Nobody was about, but I noticed that the mows on either side were still a little more than half full of roughage. He must have almost two thirds of his feed still unused.

It was a bank barn, and I heard the munching of the stock below. I followed the sound. Thirty-six lively shoats were eating corn, in a wide enclosure. The cows and calves were busily sifting out the choicest bits of hay from their well-filled mangers. On the southern side, seven draft horses vigorously bit corn from the cob, their noses moving about their small feeding troughs. Some white chickens moved cautiously about the hog enclosure, picking up stray grains of corn.

My neighbor came up from the direction of a small building south of the barn.

"Yes—but it won't spoil and another year I'll have more hogs, and maybe more cattle. Come here and I'll show you something."

I followed him to a spacious stall in the old hog house. There, nestled in the straw beside the mother were nine little red-spotted pigs, shivering and climbing over one another in a heap. As we looked, the mother half raised up, blew, and grunted her disgust at us.

Why did we have to come at a time like this to disturb her and her growing family, she seemed to say, in no uncertain hoggish language.

"Even a hog prefers privacy at times," I told my neighbor.

"They're mighty fine pigs—even now. I think they'll bid fair to make a ton litter." And in his smile, I seemed to see the vision of ten or more clean fat hogs, walking contentedly about the autumn meadow.

Trailer Status Defined.

The moot question, "When is a trailer not a trailer?" gets the answer, "When it is not being trailed," in a decision of a federal court in Texas. Federal Judge R. J. McMillan decided recently in San Antonio that a trailer detached from an automobile has the status of a building.

Trailers used as dwellings have brought to attention a number of problems. Most serious among these are the welfare of children in trailer-housed families, and the obligations of heads of such families to pay something for the public advantages they enjoy.

It is apparent that families encamped for any considerable time in one place should bear a just share of the costs of schools, police and fire protection and other public services. Numerous court rulings have interpreted special relationships such families bear to the community. Te San Antonio case rules that a house on wheels receives the responsibility of a home in a community when its motive power is detached from it. —Detroit News.

Listen, World!

You Can't Cash In on Grandpaw's Gumption.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SINCE no one else would spring a War, we started a dandy for ourselves the other day by asking five million young people (12-30 years) the following question:

"COULD YOUNG AMERICA MAKE GOOD IN THE WILDERNESS IF IT HAD TO START FROM SCRATCH, AT ITS PIONEERS DID?"

Hot-diggety, how those answers came crashing in! At least 95 per cent were in the affirmative, which we'd expect. But we hadn't expected the reason which most of them gave. Instead of boasting of their own prowess, nearly all of them gave Grampaw the credit! Said young wife Betty Barnes of Sunnyside, Wash.

Could we take it? Of course we could! Yes, I admit we're largely a spoiled, coddled, luxury-loving generation and we may seem to be sissies on the surface. But don't worry—we'd make good in a pinch. OUR FATHERS DIDN'T STRIVE OR SUFFER IN VAIN; THE SPIRIT THEY ESTABLISHED IN US, THE IDEALS THEY HELD BEFORE US HAVE REMAINED UNCHANGED THROUGH THE CENTURIES!"

Marianna Rossi of Queens Village, Long Island, N. Y., also believed the Old Folks would see Young America through—

"The early settlers were young and ambitious and willing to apply themselves and face any hardships. Youth has always transmitted the virtues of its predecessors. We, today, are our rugged fathers in a different dress, but WITH THE SAME SPIRIT WHICH MADE THEM INDOMITABLE."

So they ran, thousands of them, in one happy chorus of confidence. Fine, serious, well-written letters . . . and 9 out of 10 readers will agree with the argument that Young America can't be licked because "THE GOOD OLD AMERICAN FIGHTING SPIRIT" WOULD SEE THEM THROUGH."

But it wouldn't. I, too, would gladly bet my last nickel on Young America's making good in any jam; but it wouldn't be because George Washington starved at Valley Forge and Abe Lincoln splits logs and studied by a tallow.

IF YOU NEED A BACKBONE YOU'LL HAVE TO MAKE IT FOR YOURSELF.

This notion that we Americans are the shrewdest and spunkiest nation on earth simply because our fighting fathers hung up a spectacular record in these virtues is The Great American Fallacy. Insofar as we individually work to profit by their glorious examples, we benefit from them. Otherwise, their virtues are no more useful to us than their cast-off store teeth.

Another oddity in this contest was Young America's estimate of pioneer "hardships." All expected to face hunger, thirst, lack of tools, clothes, mechanical conveniences. But not one writer mentioned the two conditions which were the hardest tests of pioneer courage and which would constitute an infinitely tougher test to the average American today: namely, MONOTONY and LONELINESS.

It wasn't the bears they faced or the meals they missed which gave Grampaw and Gramma the worst pain in the neck. It was the everlasting solitude and sameness of life. If such conditions were hard for them, who knew so few amusement at the best, what would they be to the average Machine Age citizen with his nightly Bright Light Parade or Bridge Game?

How long do YOU think you could stand living in a virgin wilderness . . . sans all "modern conveniences" . . . with visitors "dropping in" only every two or three months . . . with no companionship save that of mate and babies?

YES, IT'S A SERIOUS QUESTION. LET'S HEAR YOUR ANSWERS—WE'D LIKE TO PRINT THEM!

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Americans paid $90,000,000 last year for the privilege of listening to dance bands. That's big business. Ninety million dollars is big business anywhere. The public is high on dance bands just now.

At least 98 per cent of this $90,000,000 was negotiated by four corporations — Music Corporation of America, Consolidated Radio Artists, Rockwell-O'Keefe, and the William Morris agency.

These four companies control every important orchestra in the United States. The Music Corporation of America is the oldest and the largest. It has been in existence nearly 17 years. Until recently it had what amounted to a monopoly on the management of America's dance bands.

The second largest is the Consolidated Radio Artists, now three years old, which this year will handle a $5,000,000 slice of the business. The O'Keefe office is third in size, with some notable bands on its list, and the William Morris agency (its band department is only four months old) the fourth.

IT IS these organizations which scout small bands, groom them, bring them along till they are ready for the big time, place them into the proper niche and permit them to blossom—if they have the stuff—into "Name" bands — the Kay Kysers, the Paul Whitemans, the Guy Lombardos.

This is an intricate and a painstaking process, and, as Charles Green, who is president of Consolidated Radio Artists, describes it, an interesting one. Take the case of Blue Barron. Consolidated found him in Cleveland. His top price at that time was $400 a week. They liked the way he worked. They took him under management, brought him to New York, and, at union scale, put him into a Manhattan hotel, then fed him through the proper network channels to the public. Nine months later he was out on the road, a "Name" band, and from nothing his weekly guarantee runs into the thousands.

There isn't much hope for any orchestra unless it's kept before the public via the air. These four corporations have the proper connections to keep you on the air. Artie Shaw jumped in four months from coffee money to $8,500 a week. He wouldn't have reached this if he had been on his own. And yet, with all this help, he had to be good to catch on. There are some 40 orchestras on the networks each night, and some 200 each week. Of these only eight won eminence last year—Barron, Shaw, Larry Clinton, Sammy Kaye—to name half.

NONE of these could have gotten anywhere without the network facilities provided by their respective agents. These networks provide a minimum of two million hearers nightly. With two million people listening to you it doesn't take long for some sort of reaction to get back to the sponsors. Green says Consolidated paid NBC something like $50,000 last year for these network privileges, "the life blood of bands." From his offices in Rockefeller Center he directs the activities of 180 orchestras. Paul Whiteman is his biggest "name," and will be for 20 years, because Whiteman has a 20-year contract.

Their offices are spread chain fashion across the continent—New York, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Their scouts comb the hinterlands for promising material. If they like you they nurse you along and give you every advantage until you click or demonstrate that you can't produce. It's the only way open to an orchestra that wants to get anywhere.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

A tap at the door of their room in the tourist home awakened Jim and Lona the morning after their wedding night. Sitting up in bed Lona saw the sun streaming through the windows that had been eerie with moonlight in last night's darkness.

"Yes?" she called out, laughing at Jim's tousled head and sleepy eyes.

"The morning paper . . . thought you'd like to see it," came in the friendly voice of the woman of the house.

"Thank you," Lona murmured, and turned to the clock. Imagine waking people up to give them the morning paper. Then her eyes widened as she saw the time. Ten o'clock! She laughed again, and punched Jim to make him wake.

"Sleepyhead!" she taunted. "Why didn't you tell me it was ten o'clock? Come on, we've got to get back to town and go house hunting."

Slipping out of bed she caught up her negligee and went barefoot to the door, tossing back her brown curls like a child. The paper was propped against the door, and she brought it inside expectantly. Perhaps in the "For Rent" ads she might find her future address.

Sitting on the bed where Jim still stretched and yawned, she opened the folded sheet, and then a little surprise exclamation forced itself through her lips. Sprawled across the front page was a picture of herself and Jim!

"Why, how on earth—" she began, and then she saw it had been taken in the same court house corridor where Jim had punched the reporter yesterday and smashed his camera. Jim frowning in the picture, and she looked frightened. She recalled the click she had heard as the second reporter opened the door for them. He, too, must have had a camera, a hidden one.

"Lona Ackerman, the girl who last week buried her convict father after being a principal in the sensational break and kidnaping at the state penitentiary, applied for a marriage license at the license bureau late yesterday. The above picture of the couple was snapped just after the groom-to-be, who gave his name as James Claridge, 29, had knocked down Reporter Ellis Butler of the Times, and smashed his camera, when Butler attempted to snap a similar picture. Claridge is a structural iron worker on the new Terminal building. Wedding plans of the couple were kept secret."

It was a deliberately irritating bit of publicity. As if the reporter writing it had tried to get even for Jim's outburst by including as many notorious details as possible. But, somehow, in her new status as Jim's wife, Lona failed to get more than slightly angry over it. Perhaps, she thought, as she read the familiar phrases that a week ago would have caused her to flinch in shame, she was getting used to it. Or was it that, now she had Jim to protect her, things didn't seem so terrible as when she had been alone?

"Look, Jim!" she said, and held out the page to him. "They got us after all."

"Got us? What do you mean?"

He stopped short at sight of the picture staring out at him, and his face went a sickly white. His fists were clenched as he took it in, and into his eyes there flashed for an instant a look that Lona knew instinctively as fear. Bewildered, she watched him in silence.

"That woman downstairs! Do you think she's seen this?" he demanded, almost roughly, after a moment's silence.

"I—I don't know. I—suppose so—"

"They mustn't recognize us. We'd better get packed and get out of here." He was almost furtive.

"But I—somehow I don't seem to care about the publicity any more. I don't care if I am recognized. It doesn't seem to make so much difference—now." She gave him a shy glance full of meaning, but his mind seemed to be far away.

"Jim!" she burst out, then, "what's the matter? You look so strange—"

"Oh, it's just that it makes me so damned mad!" He made an obvious effort to return to normal. She could see him relaxing, forcing his whimsical half smile. "They've no right to take pictures of us! I'd like to get my hands on that reporter's neck, that's all. Don't you realize what this means, girl? We're going to have to travel now instead of going back to the city—"

"Travel! Why, what do you mean, Jim?

"I didn't tell you, but my job back there on the Terminal building is finished. I didn't want to upset you. I was thinking of going back and getting into some other game because I thought you sort of liked the town and wanted to live there. But now . . .there's a new bridge going up out near Detroit. Guess we'd better make tracks for there."

"Jim, do you mean you're—out of a job? And we're not going back to the city?" She was bewildered.

"That's about it, girl. After that picture it wouldn't be very pleasant for you to be—hunting a house, as you say. Every landlady in the city would turn up her nose. I couldn't let you go back and—face that again. You must know that. We'll catch a train and go places!"

"A train. But the car, Jim! Surely you're going to take that back to the city. It's only hired . . . "

"There's a garage man I know bact at ——" He paused and she had the impression he was searching his memory for some unfamiliar name. "Back at Lewistown. We came through Lewistown yesterday, didn't we? About an hour's drive back, if I remember correctly. We'll go back that far and drop off the car. There's a through bus line makes this highway, I think, and we can take it to the nearest train stop. You're going places, girl. West! . . Think of it!"

He reached for her, suddenly, and pulled her into his arms. His fear and worry seemed to have vanished. His good humor was restored.

"But I — I don't quite understand, Jim. To—pick up and—and change plans like this . . " She still hesitated.

"I told you I was a rolling stone, didn't I? You're going to get used to quick changes, girl. Besides, why should you care? One town's as good as another, isn't it? As long as we're together?"

She strained against him, then. "As long as we're together, Jim," she repeated solemnly. "I don't think I could bear it if we ever had to separate. Don't ever leave me!" she pleaded. "No matter wat happens!"

"Girl!" he said, and his eyes were bright as if with tears, as his seeking lips found hers. "Oh, girl."

It was hard to realize that they were not going back to the city. As they drove back to Lewistown and Jim left their rented car in t he care of a greasy garage mechanic, Lona caught herself speculating. It seemed so much like flight.

Loyally she kept at bay the doubts that crept into her mind as she sat beside Jim through the ride on the speeding bus that took them within thirty miles of the state capital where only a week ago she had been in such trouble. How things had changed since then!

They would be obliged to spend the night on the train, Jim told her, after a consultation with the agent of the branch station where they finally found themselves late that afternoon. Morning would bring them into Brighton, the place for which they were heading.

"But how can you be sure you'll find work there, Jim?" she asked him, her voice puzzled.

He shrugged. "There's always room for one more good iron worker on a bridge job," he told her. "That's one thing you never need worry about, girl. There'll always be work for me somewhere . . . I've made many a change as suddenly as this."

His eyes pleaded for understanding and, under their spell, the thing seemed as simple as he put it.

"You've a family to support now, Jim," she chided him, and they both laughed. It was good to be light-hearted, Lona thought. To be with someone with whom you belonged. To have that feeling of complete companionship.

ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOLS SLIPS

Decrease in February Slight Though Despite Wave of Colds, Report Shows.

Despite a near-epidemic of colds and grippe, attendance at Mansfield public schools in February dropped only seven-tenths of a per cent from the January figures, reports to Supt. W. L. Miller showed today.

There was a marked decline, however, in the number of pupils who were neither absent nor tardy, the February total dropping to 2,974 from 3,323 in January.

Average attendance for the schools in February was 92.3 per cent while the average for the preceding month was 93 per cent.

With 97.5 per cent, the Bushnell school topped the February attendance list. The West Fifth street school was second with 96.1 per cent and the Woodland school third with 95.1 per cent.

Tardiness increased in February while truancy cases showed a decline. There were 561 cases of tardiness and 35 cases of truancy last month as compared with 688 and 21 cases in January.

Total enrollment in February was 6,359 pupils with Senior high heading the list with 1,386.

LOANS
over $100

No co-signers or endorsers
No embarrassment or delay

● When you borrow, you should know these facts about small loan rates. The Small Loan Law of this state permits a certain maximum rate to be charged for a loan. On all loans of more than $100 Household Finance does not charge the full rate!

Check these savings

Suppose you need $140. At the lawful maximum rate the cost of your loan for 30 days is $4.20. At Household's lower rates the charge is $3.80—a saving of 40c. On a loan of $200 the cost for 30 days at the lawful maximum rate is $6.00. At Household's rates the charge is $5.00—a saving of $1.00. (Thirty day loans are used as examples for convenience. Loans for longer terms naturally cost less per month.)

You may apply to Household Finance for a loan of $20 to $300. You need no stocks, bonds or other bankable security. No one need sign with you (married couples sign together). You get your loan without delay and without embarrassment to you.

1. Anyone may apply to Household Finance for a loan of $20 to $300 on furniture, car or home.
2. Small monthly payments. Example: $6.00 first month, decreasing each month to $5.19 last month, repays a $100 loan in 20 months, including charges, provided privilege to repay in advance.
3. You do not need co-makers or endorsers. No salary or wage assignment required.
4. Household Finance's monthly charge is less than the lawful maximum on all loans above $100.
5. Quick action. No tedious waiting.
6. Loan may be repaid ahead of schedule to reduce the cost. Charge is made on unpaid balance only.
7. No credit inquiries made of friends or relatives. Private consultation rooms.

New Ideas Welcomed By Cooks

By IRENE OBERLIN
Ohio Public Service Company
Home Service Department.

Some of the following recipes may bring the spirit of adventure into the kitchen and housewives are ever ready to add to their menu-planning a different note if they feel it will be welcomed by their families. You may find some of these useful to you.

Mince Meat Apple Dumplings.

2 cups sifted flour
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
4 Tbsp. shortening
⅔ cup milk
1 or more cups mince meat
6 tart apples
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ sup brown sugar
2 Tbsp. butter

Siift the flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening, add milk to make a soft mix. Roll ⅛ inch thick on floured board and cut in 8 squares. Place sliced apples on squares. Sprinkle with cinnamon Top with mince meat, sugar and butter. Fold up. Bake 10 minutes at 450° and 20 minutes longer at 350°.

Coffee Cake.

2 cups sifted flour
2½ tsp. baking powder
½ Tbsp. lard
1 egg (well beaten)
½ cup Eagle Brand milk
½ cup water
2 Tbsp. butter (melted)
4 Tbsp. sugar
1 Tbsp. flour
1 tsp cinnamon

Sift the first three ingredients, cut in lard, add egg, milk and water which have been blended to the flour mixture Turn into a well buttered 8-inch square pan Brush with melted butter. Combine flour, sugar, cinnamon and sprinkle over he top. Bake in a moderately hot oven 400° for 25 to 30 minutes.

Almond Cheese Squares.

3 cups Bisquick
½ cup sugar
1 egg (well beaten)
¾ cup milk
½ lb. grated cheese
1 cup chopped almonds

Mix Bisquick and 3 Tbsp of the sugar, add egg, milk and cheese. Beat well. Turn into buttered shallow pan (8x12) inches Sprinkle with remaining sugar and almonds. Bake about 30 minutes at 400°. Cut in squares. Serve hot.

Peanut Butter Mayonnaise.

⅔ cup Eagle Brand milk
¼ cup vinegar or lemon juice (more if preferred)
¼ cup salad oil or melted butter
1 egg yolk
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. dry mustard
3 Tbsp. peanut butter

Beat all ingredients thoroughly, except the peanut butter. Just before serving all the peanut butter. If you like it thicker place in refrigerator and chill.

Salmon Bake.

4 Tbsp. butter (melted)
2 cups (flaked) salmon
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. minced onion
2 Tbsp. chopped parsley
2 eggs (slightly beaten)
¾ cup bread crumbs
½ to ¾ cup milk

Mix the ingredients, cover with strips of bacon and bake 30 to 40 minutes at 375° to 400°. Serve with pimento sauce

Pimento Sauce.

3 Tbsp butter
3 Tbsp flour
1½ cups milk
⅛ tsp. salt
¼ tsp pepper
3 Tbsp chopped pinento

Pork Chops with Baby Lima Beans

Use large unit on your range and skillet.

Brown—4 pork chops, 1 onion, (chopped) 3 Tbsp fat.

1 pimento (chopped)
2 Tbsp brown sugar
2 tsp salt
Pepper
2 cups water
2 Tbsp vinegar
1 bay leaf (if you like)

Place chops on top. Cover and leave on high until steam escapes, turn to simmer for 15 minutes and then turn off the current entirely for the remaining 30 minutes of cooking, using stored heat. Time in all required—1 hour

Aluminum

To keep your aluminum cooking utensils looking shiny and new see that they are well washed as soon as used. Soak them in warm water and then wash out in warm soapy water. Wipe dry with a soft cloth.

Tea-Time

Here is a new tea-time wrinkle: Let the guests sweeten their tea with little lemon drops or bits of rock candy. For real distinction, dip the candies in rum before offering to the guests.

When buying mats and doilies for the dining table remember that those of rectangular shape provide a wider space for silver and glasses than oval or round ones. Arrange the doilies about a fourth of an inch from the edge of the table.

Lattice Pie Would Be Tasty

The latticed pear pie, in the foreground, is a tasty new idea and it makes a good church-supper companion for raisin and deep-dish peach pies.—1 large can (No. 2½ Bartlett pear halves; ½ cup pear juice; 1 package gelatin dessert (orange flavor); 1 recipe for pastry.

Line nine-inch pie pan with pastry. Drain pear halves and place in lower crust with ½ cup of pear juice. Sprinkle top with undissolved quick-setting gelatin. Cover with strips of pastry in lattice form. Bake in hot oven (475 degrees F.) for 10 minutes, reduce temperature to 425 degrees F. and bake 30 minutes longer.

Writer Offers Suggestions For Covered-Dish Dinners

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

If you're running a covered-dish party for your school, church or community club, the first thing to keep in mind is to plan the contributions so the assortment will fill in a complete menu Don't have too many of the volunteer cooks bring the main dish at the expense of soup or dessert, for example.

And just because Mrs. Smith is famous for her escalloped oysters, or Mrs. Green for her salads, don't impose on them.

Some Suggestions.

Here are some suggestions that may be helpful when you're planning your next covered-dish party:

If vegetable soup is the first course, bring a goodly supply in a large, covered pail or kettle. It merely needs reheating to be ready to serve with some crisp celery and crackers. Cream of corn soup goes very well to parties. Chowders—fish or corn—really are improved by a second heating so they are excellent for this kind of an affair.

For the main course, you can choose from many dishes: Escalloped potatoes are popular and easily carried; sweet potato puff is a good item. Then there is escalloped oysters, baked mashed squash, savory escalloped corn, and Spanish rice. They all are easy to carry, keep hot for some time and can be reheated without loss of their characteristic subtle flavors.

Pot Pies Recommended.

Chicken and noodles, or creamed chicken and rice, en casserole, are welcome additions to any social function. Meat, fish or fowl loaves are also considered in high esteem. Breaded veal cutlets in creole sauce or pork chops with tomato topping go right into the de luxe culinary class.

Pot pies are wonderful to eat. You can vary the insides and tops to your heart's content. Whether the filling is fish, meat, fowl, vegetable, mushrooms or hard-cooked eggs, it must be mixed with a delicious creamy, savory gravy. Remember to have plenty of it, too For crusts, you can select pastry, biscuit or pie doughs, mashed sweet or white potatoes, noodles, rice or macaroni.

Salads Always Help.

When taking pot pies to a covered-dish party, make them in a large shallow pan. Cut the covering in individual sizes. This greatly facilitates the serving. You can fashion the dough into rings, circles or squares.

Take a salad that keeps fresh and remains firm and tasty. Cabbage fruit salad is a good choice. Or you can take a salad bowl filled with sliced tomatoes, green peppers, cucumbers, greens and savory seasonings.

Of course you have a wide range of desserts, starting with pies and ending up with ice cream and cake. For the in-betweens you might enjoy carrying gingerbread with orange frosting, cranberry tarts, strawberry pineapple shortcake (using canned fruits,) cottage puddings with apricot sauce, baked apple cobblers and hard sauce or chocolate roll.

Cleaning Hats

To remove spots and freshen up your felt hat, rub it with sandpaper or an emery board. First brush off with a clean stiff brush. This treatment is especially recommended to use for water spots on hats.

Gum on Rugs

To remove chewing gum from rugs, rub with any dry-cleaning fluid. Rub different ways on the rug and soon the gum will loosen so that it can be picked off. The cleaning fluid then removes the gum stains.

One of the best coverings for an ironing board is new unbleached muslin, washed to remove the starch. Regular ironing board covers are sold at moderate prices. Don't think just any old covering will do—efficient coverings save much time and energy.

Do you like baked bananas? Then here is a suggestion for a main-course food for breakfast, luncheon or supper: Split bananas, stuff them with small link sausages. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

Senate Group Would Bar Machine Guns, Gas In Strikes

REPORT HITS 'ARSENALS' IN STRIKE AREAS

Charges U. S. Companies Paid $1,255,312 for Tear Gas in Union Disputes.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate civil liberties committee said today "the purchasing and storing of arsenals of firearms and tear and sickening gas weapons is a common practice by large employers who refuse to bargain collectively with legitimate labor unions."

The committee, headed by Senator La Follette (Prog-Wis.) recommended legislation to prevent the use of machine guns and "offensive chemical weapons" in industrial disputes. It also urged that movements of armed company police and strike guards be restricted to plant property.

Any legislation should maintain employers' rights to protect their property, the committee added.

It reported that employers purchased $1,255,312 of tear and sickening gas between 1933 and June, 1937, "chiefly during or in anticipation of strikes."

"All of the largest individual purchasers are corporations," the report said, "and their totals far surpass those of large law enforcement purchasers.

'Largest Purchaser.'

"In fact, the largest purchase of gas equipment in the country, the Republic Steel corporation, bought four times as much as the largest law enforcement purchaser."

During the "Little Steel" strike of 1937, the committee said, Republic has 552 revolvers, 64 rifles with 1,325 rounds of ammunition, 245 shotguns with 5,784 rounds of shotgun shells, 143 gas guns with 4,033 gas projectiles, and 2,707 hand grenades."

"Out of $490,598 worth of gas purchased by the 80 largest private purchasers between January, 1933, and June, 1937," the committee said, "$401,127 was bought during strikes or when strikes were threatened. . . .

"In all, $364,507 worth of gas was purchased before or during strikes or strike threats in which union recognition was the exclusive or a contributing factor."

The committee statement outlined activities of three firms which it said sell most of the tear and sickening gas equipment—Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Pittsburgh, the Lake Erie Chemical Company of Cleveland, and the Manville Manufacturing Corporation of Pontiac, Mich.

"The statements of responsible officers of the munitions companies reveal that their business depends in a large measure on the existence of labor disputes and strikes," the report said.

Discussing specific activities, the committee reported that during the "little steel" strike virtually all the weapons used in the forcible dispersal of a picket line at Monroe, Mich., were furnished law enforcement authorities by Republic Steel corporation.

Largest Ohio law enforcement purchasers of gas and gas equipment were listed by the committee as follows:

Ohio National Guard, $20,234.79; $13,091.97: Mahoning county, $12,051.71; city of Youngstown, $8,453.40.

TAX RECEIPTS NEAR $300,000

Just 12 Days Remain to Pay Real Estate Levy Without Penalty, Says Kolb.

County real estate tax receipts approached the $300,000 mark today with just 12 days remaining in which to pay without penalty.

Collections this morning totaled $272,995, according to Treasurer John E. Kolb, and an anticipated last-minute gain in payments was expected to boost receipts past $300,000 by the middle of the week. The tax bill for the year is $1,500,000, including delinquencies.

Personal tax collections, however, continued to lag, and receipts today amounted to $18,418. Last year total personal tax receipts amounted to about $150,000.

Despite a slight decline in the county's sales tax receipts from the preceding week, collections for the first week of March were $160 ahead of last year, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported today.

Collections for the week this year were $7,667 and for the corresponding week last year, $7,507. Total receipts to March 5 this year in the county were $68,540, an increase of approximately $1,400 over last year.

CRESTLINE—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Eckert are the parents of a daughter born Sunday morning at their home on North street.

GIVES UP LIFE

CHICAGO —(AP)— Miss Helen Oleczewski, 18, was dead today, but because of her last act before she was struck by an automobile a 15-months-old baby lived.

With Patricia Szymonik, the baby of a friend, in her arms, Miss Oleczewski started across a busy street last night. Suddenly a car was upon her. She threw the infant over her shoulder and a split second later was ground beneath the car's wheels.

BOY, 10, HELD

Faces Juvenile Judge in Theft of Woman's Purse.

A 10-year-old youth with a police record was to be taken before Judge C. J. Anderson in juvenile court this afternoon in connection with the theft of a purse containing $16 at the Coliseum yesterday.

The youth was picked up by officers who were called to the rink at 3 p. m. by Herbert Rimmel, 249 West Fifth street, who said he found the boy in the boiler room with a handbag said to have been taken only a few minutes before from Mrs. Sterling Horn, 156 Marion avenue. Mrs. Horn said she had laid the purse on a chair.

Unable to find the money which Mrs. Horn said was in the purse, the youth admitted that he had hid it in the wall near the box office where it was found.

The boy previously was held in connection with burglarizing a school and on a theft charge.

CRESTLINE LEGION POST HOLDS 20TH ANNIVERSARY OBSERVANCE

The first caucus of the Legion was held in Paris, March 15, 1919. Cards furnished the evening's diversion and prizes were awarded to Mrs. A. C. Smith, A. D. Miller, Mrs. Erma Eason, John Bauer and T. H. McCreary.

W. J. Meyers and P. C. Frye were in charge of the committee which served a fish supper at the close of the card games.

Supt. R. B. Smith received a degree of Doctor of Philospohy, when graduation exercises were held at Ohio State University in Columbus, Friday afternoon.

Mr. Smith graduated from Bucyrus high school, and Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, receiving his A. B. degree there in 1916. He began teaching in the Crestline high school the same year and in 1920 was elected principal and in 1924, superintendent which position he has held since that time. He has been enrolled in summer classes at other universities and received his Master's Degree in 1932 at Ohio State.

Attending the graduating exercises Friday, were Mrs. Smith and their children, Robert and Margaret Ann, his mother, Mrs. J. I. Smith of Crestline, Daniel Kreiter and Miss Cleo Kreiter of Galion and Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Simpson of Wapakoneta. The latter couple returned to Crestline and spent the week-end at the Smith home.

Colorful costumes and appropriate stage settings helped make the program presented by the pupils of thes ixth grades in the school auditorium Friday evening both interesting and entertaining. Piano solos were played by several members of the class as an opening feature of the program.

An original play, called, Sixth Grade Dream, written by the class and the teacher Mrs. Zona Morkel, was given. It centered around their work in social science and music and depicted life in the various countries in music, dance and dialogue. Lead parts were taken by Yvonne Kindinger, Barbara Beck and Jacqueline Lightburn.

The teachers, Mrs. Morkel and Miss Mary Agnes Kellar were assisted by M. C. Davis and Merle Hutson, also members of the school faculty.

O. P. S. OPENS 3-DAY MEETING

Distribution Representatives of Cleveland Division in City for Convention.

More than 80 representatives of the distribution department of the Ohio Public Service company joined by agents of 35 electrical manufacturers were in Mansfield today to attend the annual three-day meeting of the Cleveland division which opened this morning at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Highlighting today's program was a technical discussion on transmission led by D. W. Nethercut of Elyria. Clarence Tick, engineer for the Cleveland General Electric company also addressed the group.

Tuesday's session will open with a visit to an exhibit of electrical apparatus set up by affiliated manufacturers in the hotel ballroom and a demonstration by James R. Kearny corporation of St. Louis in "Hot Line" tools.

Paul Reed, editor of the Alliance Review will address the afternoon session on "Public Relations and Customer Contracts." Dr. James Deering of Cleveland will discuss "External Infections" dealing with modern safety practices.

The meetings will be climaxed with a banquet Tuesday night at the Fairway on Park avenue west road with the group presenting a "Home Talent" show under the direction of George E. Snider, of Cleveland, general distribution engineer.

A technical discussion on meters and line construction by P. M. Gentzel of Elyria and E. R. Smith of Warren, Wednesday, will conclude the meeting.

BRITAIN PLANS 'SOLID FRONT' AGAINST NAZIS

or who has seen the foreign secretary every time he has called at the foreign office during the last few days.

"I am very happy this morning."

He declined to state the reasons for his jubilation but some believed he may have gained a British pledge of some sort of support for Rumania if she resisted comprehensive economic demands by Germany.

Among the callers at the foreign office was German Charge D'Affaires Erick Kordt who arrived while Lord Halifax and Britain's ambassador to Berlin were there.

United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy conferred with Lord Halifax. So did French Ambassador Charles Corbin. An informed source said Lord Halifax talked to Kennedy about the close diplomatic collaboration.

France Decides on Rhine Border Watch.

PARIS—(AP)—The French government was reported today to have decided upon regional mobilization along the Rhineland frontier as a warning to Germany to keep hands off Rumania, a French ally.

Political sources indicated that the first use Premier Daladier would make of the unprecedented dictatorial powers voted him by parliament yesterday would be an armed demonstration to Rumania that she would not have to face German threats alone.

Unusual secrecy surrounded a hastily-called cabinet meeting yesterday, but political observers agreed that the first plenary decrees, submitted for President Albert Lebrun's signature today, would start the recall of troops and would be designed to bring the French army's standing strength up to nearly 1,000,000 men.

Daladier was reported to have called to the colors 125,000 special fortress troops from the last three classes which have completed their military service. It was also said an additional class of 240,000 men might be summoned.

Robert Coulondre, French ambassador to Berlin who—like the British ambassador to Berlin and the German envoy to London—was summoned back "to report," arrived this morning and went immediately to see Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

Rumania was considered in Paris diplomatic circles to be the next probable European danger spot.

They said that the Rumanian government had informed London and Paris that it was being subjected to pressure to fall into the German orbit.

Diplomatic dispatches indicated that London was arranging French, Soviet Russian and British military staff talks to decide on means of supporting Rumania. These were expected to be the forerunner of a reported "stop Hitler" conference which would include Poland, Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

Hitler Confers on Hostile Democracies.

BERLIN—(UP)—Adolf Hitler consulted with his cabinet and the heads of Nazi fighting services today on how to meet the open hostility of western democracies and Soviet Russia against German expansion in central Europe.

Hitler had started his consultation as soon as he returned from his tour of the new German protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia to receive the cheers of perhaps a million persons in the streets of Berlin.

One result of the session, it was understood, was abandonment of the reichstag session which had been tentatively set for Tuesday. The date was delayed indefinitely, it was said.

The Nazi government was understood to be preparing a declaration to German intentions toward Poland and Rumania.

The declaration, it was reported, will assert that the German government desires only good economic relations with both nations.

Great Britain's formidable "stop Hitler" program and the American 25 per cent tariff boost against German products startled the Nazis, and left them in no doubt that this time there would be no acquiescence to their expansionism.

It was expected that Hitler would summon the reichstag for an early meeting, possibly tomorrow, and would report to it on his march into Czechoslovakia and his future intentions.

SET FOR FRIDAY

Springfield Township Alumni To Give Comedy At School.

"The Hen-Pecked Husband," a three-act farce comedy, will be presented by the Alumni Association of Springfield township high school Friday night in the high school auditorium at Ontario. It was erroneously stated in Saturday's News-Journal that the play would be given Thursday.

Association members cast in the production are John Mabee, Marjorie Mowry, Marion Hetler, James Elliott, Mrs. John Mabee, Vivian Dougherty, Jacob Urschel, Mary Elizabeth Elliott, Ila Mae Smith, Louis Grall, and Helen and Raymond Friday.

Civic Music Books Singer

Lovely Gladys Swarthout, the Deep Water, Mo., girl who started her concert career at 13 and who now sits on top of the world as a star of opera, radio and motion pictures, will come to Mansfield next season as top star on the Civic Music Association programs. Miss Swarthout, who has appeared with both the Metropolitan and Chicago companies, and who will be remembered for her work in the pictures "Champagne Waltz" and "Rose of The Rancho," heads the Mansfield program which also includes the Don Cossack chorus and the National Symphony orchestra.

CIVIC MUSIC GOES OVER TOP

Symphony of Washington, D. C., and the famous Don Cossack chorus of male voices.

The program will be entirely new from the standpoint of types of talent. Miss Swarthout will be the first soprano that Mansfield will have heard on the Civic Music programs; the colorful Russian chorus of 30 voices is the first choral group and the 65-piece symphony is the first instrumental group. The demand for a symphony led all other types of programs on the ballots that were turned in by members.

Hans Kindler, who conducts the National Symphony, appeared in Mansfield a number of years ago in a cello concert. Miss Swarthout formerly with the Metropolitan Opera, now divides her time largely between her motion picture work and concert tours.

This is the third year that the Civic Music plan has been operated in Mansfield. Mrs. Paul Cropper was general chairman this year of the membership campaign and had enlisted more than 200 workers. The Mansfield organization was assisted by Mrs. Mercedes Walker of New York City.

ASHLAND—Miss Edith Idella Bennett, 59, of Mifflin, died here at Samaritan hospital Sunday evening following a week's illness.

Born Oct. 2, 1879 near Mifflin, Miss Bennett spent her entire life in Ashland county. She was a member of the Mifflin Lutheran church.

She is survived by a sister, Daisy, at home, and a brother, Charles, of Ashland. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Lutheran church with Rev. C. B. A. Stacy officiating. Burial will be in Mifflin cemetery.

JAPS FEEL QUAKE

Southern Nippon Rocked by Earth Shocks; Homes Ruined.

TOKYO—(AP)—An earthquake described by the central meteorological observatory as the strongest in five years rocked southern Japan today, destroying communications and power lines and damaging hundreds of homes.

The number of casualties, if any, was not known.

County Lags With Rest of State In Buying '39 Tags

With only nine business days remaining before the March 31 deadline for registrations of motor vehicles and less than 50 per cent of Ohio motorists having applied for licenses, deputy registrars throughout the state were notified by the state office to be prepared for a last-minute rush.

Mansfield was under the 50 per cent mark, for only 3,126 passenger plates have been issued. Last year 7,347 were issued for the month of March and 13,338 for the entire year. An unusual coincidence was that exactly the same number had been issued up to today as for the same period last year—3,126.

While Frank Beverstock, deputy registrar for Mansfield, was preparing to handle last-minute crowds this week and next, other registrars throughout the county were taking similar measures. Other deputies are Lee Henry, Olivesburg; C. E. Morris, Shelby; Ellen Bowers, Bellville; D. A. Spayde, Butler; Clarence M. Ervin, Plymouth; Emma Chamberlain, Lucas, and George W. Page, Shiloh.

The Mansfield office will remain open next Saturday to 8 p. m. and every night next week, Beverstock said.

FRANCE ACTS IN SYRIAN RIOTING

Takes Over Police Powers to Quell Widespread Disorders.

DAMASCUS, Syria—(AP)—The French government took over all police and security powers from the Syrian government today and French troops began military occupation of Damascus.

The action was decided upon in view of a growing revolt in various sections of Syria and continued rioting in Damascus, Homs, 100 miles north of Damascus, and other cities.

Rioting began Saturday. Most of the demonstrators in Damascus have been Syrian nationalists angered by France's failure to ratify the 1936 treaty giving Syria independence. Autonomy movements have been behind disturbances elsewhere.

HEAR LECTURE ON DIABETES

Richland Physicians To Meet at Hospital Thursday.

Dr. Henry Johns of Cleveland will speak at a meeting of the Richland County Medical Society at 4:15 p. m. Thursday in the assembly room at General hospital.

Dr. Johns will lecture on "The Treament of Diabetes," giving special attention to the use of protamine insulin in treatment of the disease.

SWALLOWS BACK

Birds Return To Mission! Keep 162-Year Record Intact.

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Cal.—(INS)—Again the annual miracle of St. Joseph's day had been enacted as unfailingly as it was annually for the last 162 years and today the swallows of historic San Juan Caristrano mission were back home.

As mysteriously as they return, the swallows disappear somewhere to the south on San Juan's day, Oct. 23. Padres at the mission have observed this arrival and departure on the days of the saints since 1777, and records disclose the schedule has never varied.

DEAD MAN AT WHEEL

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The body of Charles Belt, about 45, of nearby Worthington, was removed from his car early today after it crashed into two other vehicles. Police expressed belief that Belt died of a heart attack before the accident.

WPA SLASH TO AFFECT CITY

were disclosed today by a state auditor's report as a joint legislative committee sought to solve the problem of enabling local communities to raise their half of the expenses.

With unpaid relief bills for this year already past the $22,000 mark, city officials here have contended that they are unable to participate in a state matching process unless enabling legislation is provided to raise funds that they can use for matching purposes.

Show Cut In Cost.

Examiners for State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson reported Ohio subdivisions spent approximately $2,155,000 for care of needy during February, a drop of nearly 20 per cent from the total of the same month a year ago.

January, 1939, expenses totalled $2,111,000 which represented a cut of 11 per cent from the previous year. While the increase from January to February in 1938 was nearly 15 per cent, the season jump this year was a little more than 2 per cent.

O. P. Van Shoick, chief relief examiner, pointed out that the case load in February was 105,000 against 96,000 in January, indicating sharply reduced costs for each case.

Unemployment compensation benefits were regarded as an important factor in reducing the relief load although better employment conditions were also believed partly responsible.

RITES ARE HELD

Miss Irene Ilger, 91, Nankin, Buried at Ashland Today.

ASHLAND — Funeral services for Miss Irene Ilger, 91, native of Nankin, who died at her home here in Ashland Saturday morning, were held this afternoon at the late home with Rev. A. A. Hunter of the Methodist church officiating. Burial was in the Ashland cemetery.

Miss Ilger, the daughter of Jacob and Sarah Norris Ilger was born October 21, 1847, and had lived in Ashland for more than 50 years. She had been in the millinery business here for many years.

She was a member of the Methodist church, of the Maple-Walnut Circle and of the Foreign Missionary society of her church.

Survivors include only nephews and nieces. Miss Ilger was the last of a family of eight children.

SHERWOOD HOLDS UP ON OUSTER

Welfare Director Withholds Action In Ohio Pen Inquiry.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Welfare Director Charles Sherwood, after spending the week-end studying part of the evidence obtained during investigation of conditions of Ohio penitentiary, told newsmen today that he was not ready to announce whether ouster charges would be filed against J. C. Woodard, suspended warden.

"I have no statement to make as to what I will do or when," said Sherwood. "There have been many conjectures (as to charges against Woodard) but conjectures do not change the facts."

Asked whether he thought the portion of evidence already studied showed the investigation was warranted, Sherwood answered:

"I hope I'll never have to disclose some of the facts discovered."

OIL LAND SCRAP AT STANDSTILL

Cardenas Says Mexico to Keep Control of Properties.

MEXICO CITY—(U.P.)—Negotiations over government expropriation of British and American oil lands apparently had reached an impasse today with President Lazaro Cardenas' assertion that Mexico intended to retain control of the properties.

Donald R. Richberg, attorney for the companies, preparing to return early this week to the United States, was understood to have insisted the companies be given control for a period long enough for them to earn an amount sufficient to amortize past and present investment, after which they would go to the government.

TWO WAIT FATE

Los Angeles Pair Convicted In U. S. Espionage Trial.

LOS ANGELES —(INS)— Convicted of espionage detrimental to the United States and facing possible maximum terms of 42 years, Mikhail Gorin and Hafis Salich were scheduled to appear in federal court today for sentence.

Salich, former operator of the United States navy intelligence service, is alleged to have stolen confidential reports and turned them over to Gorin for transmission to Russia.

SIX MUST DIE

Governor Refuses to Act In Prison Guard Slaying Case.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(AP)—Gov. Burneh R. Maybank refused today to extend clemency to six convicts condemned to die by electrocution for the slaying Dec. 12, 1937, of Guard Captain J. Olin Sanders in a futile attempt to escape from the state penitentiary here.

The six are scheduled to be put to death early Friday.

Named For Court

William O. Douglas, 40, chairman of the Securities Exchange commission, today was nominated by President Roosevelt to be an associate justice of the supreme court, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Louis D. Brandeis.

HEAR RECITAL

Several Hundred at Program Sponsored by Forum.

An audience of several hundred attended a recital last night in the Park Avenue Baptist church by Oswald Johns, radio and concert baritone of Lima.

Johns, a native of Wales, presented a program of secular and sacred number, and a Welsh song. He was accompanied by Lawrence S. Frank, minister of music at the Baptist church.

The recital was sponsored by the Communitly Christian Youth Forum and followed a meeting of the group.

Rev. Paul Hollingshead, pastor of the Central Methodist church, will be guest speaker and discussion leader at a meeting of the Forum next Sunday night at the First Congregational church. His subject will be "Propaganda In Relation to Youth." Dr. W. E. Wygant will act as leader for the meeting April 2 and a sunrise service and breakfast is being planned for the group at the Baptist church Easter Sunday.

CLOSES SEASON

SHELBY — Shelby high school placed fourth in a declamation contest Saturday at Ashland. The contest was won by Massillon. The Shelby team was headed by George George, who tied for first place in the humorous division of the contest.

This contest ended the regular schedule of the Shelby team with the exception of the state meet of the National Forensic league which will be held in this city at the high school on April 3-5. Both debeate and declamation contests will be held at the meet here next month.
